In Hungary Mine 1,200 Starving Men Are Near Death

Terrible Scenes Witnessed in Pit From Which Workers Refuse to Come Because Pay Demand Not Met

No Hope For Them, Says Envoy

Associated Press
Pecs, Hungary, Oct. 15.—Convicted there was "no more hope for them," a member of the Hungarian parliament emerged today from the black pit where for 100 hours 1,200 miners have been self-entombed, striking for more pay.

"I expected a terrible catastrophe in coal mines any moment," said Janos Esterhazy, Democratic Socialist parliamentarian who descended into the mine in an attempt to mediate with the infuriated men.

"What I saw down there will be the most terrible remembrance of my life," he said. "The miners have become absolutely insane from their awful experience."

"They are determined either to commit suicide by wrecking the pumps, or to blow up the mine. There is no more hope for them."

Until Esterhazy returned from the bottom of the 1,000-foot pit, nothing had been heard from the miners since early morning, when they sent up a request for 345 coffins with the words:

"We are determined to die. Forget about us. Goodbye to the children."

THEY TO POSTS

The more violent of the hunger-stricken men have been tied to posts by their comrades to prevent them from killing themselves, said Esterhazy.

"The trade union no longer has any control over the men. Utterly exhausted, they are huddled down in the heat, lying on the dirty, water-soaked beds of the mine, with the huge chunks of coal for pillows," it was stated.

"Some are unconscious. Nearly five days without water to drink has parched their throats, and they could not eat if they had food. In their agony and thirst and hunger some of them utter sounds like tormented animals."

At 3 p.m. government officials wished to send troops to the bottom of the pit to force the strikers to the surface at the point of bayonet and gun, and an end to their threats of self-elimination unless wage demands of $3.50 a week are met.

But the fact the mine elevator holds only sixteen men thus far had prevented the government from taking any steps, since authorities feared the city and mined and enraged miners might attempt to butcher the soldiers with pickaxes.

Subscriptions Come in For Charity Campaign; No House-to-house Canvass

Considerable encouragement was secured in this morning's responses to the appeal for $12,500 for the Friendly Help Welfare Association and welfare societies in Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt. Several large contributions and many smaller ones were received as the campaign opened to-day.

All subscriptions may be sent to the campaign headquarters at No. 6 Finch Building, 640 Port Street, where a receipt will be given for all money received. Stewart G. Clarke is in charge of this office.

There will be no house-to-house canvass as has been stated. Citizens of Greater Victoria, anxious to help this worthy cause, are asked to bring or send their subscriptions to the campaign headquarters during the next few days. It is hoped to end the campaign on Saturday.

Many people are sending in a down payment and pledging themselves to contribute an amount monthly for the next year. This is satisfactory to the officers of the various organizations connected with the campaign, and also makes it a little easier for the contributors.

HOPE SEEN IN KIDNAP CASE

Associated Press Correspondent

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 15.—The fifth day, the most portentous for Mrs. Alice Speed Stolf since she was kidnapped, brought the belief to-day the family had established contact with the abductor.

Those in a position to know agreed the fifth day played an important part in the $50,000 ransom note. Pears have been expressed the kidnapper intended to kill the young society matron if at that time he had not received the ransom and made his way to safety.

With the case at this critical stage, it was pointed out significantly that Sunday was the first day since the kidnapping last Wednesday to pass without an appeal by radio to the kidnapper. The ransom money had been dispatched to Nashville, apparently to be called for there or forwarded elsewhere.

Possessed of a fine personality and a keen sense of humor, "Smiling Alex From Aberdeen," as he was often called by his close friends and associates, was one of the best-liked pros this city has ever known.

Born in Lonsmouth, Scotland, fifty years ago, Mr. Marling came to Canada in 1921 and accepted a position as pro with the Regina Golf Club. After two years with the Saskatchewan club he was brought to Victoria by the Colwood Club to take over the job of professional, succeeding Ed McEwen.

JAPAN NAVY IN MANOEUVRES

Admiral Suoyetsugu Says Country Fears No Fleet Race With U.S.

Oak, Japan, Oct. 15.—The "fire-brand" of the Japanese navy, Admiral Nobumasa Suoyetsugu, led the combined fleet of 180 warships into Osaka Bay at the conclusion of the annual grand manoeuvres to-day and said it was needless for Japan to fear a naval race from the United States, even if the 1935 conference should fail.

Speaking to reporters aboard the flagship Kongo, in the midst of the anchored fleet, the commander-in-chief asserted:

"It is a mistake to assume a naval race will open as soon as the treaties lapse. In recent years America has accumulated several ambitious construction programmes. Even if the conference fails and America thereafter builds 1,000,000 tons of warships, they need not be any anxiety for the Japanese navy has economical and effective plans to cope with such an eventuality."

Several sick persons have been removed with difficulty to Bella Coola but no casualties were reported. Farmers have suffered greatly in loss of property and livestock.

The P.M.L. 9 will meet works department men at Ocean Falls to-night and leave immediately for the stricken area.

Temporary communication in the town has been established by telephone. In the outer districts, however, canoes have to be used.

Five miles out of the city the roads are in a terrible condition, which considerably hampers the work of rescuers.

The following messages, relayed from Prince Rupert yesterday from Constable Smith, aboard the radio-equipped patrol boat, give a full account of the situation.

All France Mourns Death Of Poincaré

Former President and Premier, Greatly Shocked By Marseilles Assassinations, Dies in 75th Year

Associated Press
Paris, Oct. 15.—Raymond Poincaré, the last of France's great war leaders, died quietly at 3.30 o'clock this morning.

The war-time President and "Saviour of the Franc" ten years later, was seventy-four years old.

The shock of the Marseilles assassinations may have hurried the end. M. Poincaré grieved over the disastrous event, for he knew King Alexander well, and Louis Barthou was his life-long friend.

The body will be given a national funeral Saturday immediately after President Lebrun's return from the King Alexander funeral at Belgrade.

The remains will lie in state at the Pantheon until Saturday noon, when the casket will be taken to the Notre Dame Cathedral for a service, then returned to the Pantheon for burial.

After a military display, the body will be taken to Campigny for a private burial at Nubecourt.

Death came at his home here after a short illness, which doctors thought was not serious. The elderly statesman had expected to leave shortly on his annual winter trip to the Riviera.

Although virtually in political retirement since he resigned as Premier in 1929, M. Poincaré had just been re-elected to a departmental seat after a spectacular physical comeback, a week ago.

"He was just worn out," they said to-day.

UNABLE TO SPEAK

All last night his wife and friends watched him. He was conscious, but an extension of his paralysis stifled his voice. He died in a silent room as a cold and windy rainstorm rattled the windows of his Paris home.

M. Poincaré's last written words constituted a newspaper article he had dictated about the late Louis Barthou. He worked until the last seeking to finish his memoirs.

The body lay to-day on a brass bed in the library among the books that had been his greatest friends and comfort. Beside it were a silver casket and a small portrait of his Paris home.

New Safeguards For the King

Associated Press
Boston, Oct. 15.—A revision is being made in the methods of protecting the British King and Queen, as the result of the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia, according to H. Walker Tripp, assistant commissioner of the London Metropolitan Police, in charge of that city's traffic system.

Commissioner Tripp is in North America studying traffic problems in various parts of Canada and the United States.

Henceforth, Commissioner Tripp said, King George and Queen Mary, on state visits in or about London, will be protected by an elaborate short-wave wireless system, controlled by Tripp from an automobile.

In the past, the assistant commissioner explained, the King and Queen traveled according to a rigid schedule, which called for their appearance at a given point at a pre-arranged time. Thus, he said, a maximum of police protection was assured.

In the future, Commissioner Tripp, from his car, will be in constant communication not only with wireless cars in the king's guard, but with London "bobbies" stationed along the route.

Dairymen Come Back With Plan

Canadian Press from Havre

Melun, France, Oct. 15.—Sylvester Malny, one of the terrorists suspected of the assassination of King Alexander and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou, was arrested to-day.

Malny was trapped in a wood near the small village of La Rochette. He was seen purchasing cigarettes and consuming a glass of brandy.

Gendarmes and mobile guards were notified as he fled into a desolate wood nearby.

DROPPED MAGAZINE

Malny was cornered once before at Fontainebleau, but he escaped his captors by scaling a high fence and disappearing into Fontainebleau Forest. As he fled he dropped a cartridge magazine of the same German make as that found on the assassin in Marseilles.

Police previously had traced him to Aix-en-Provence and Avignon. La Rochette is about ten miles from Fontainebleau.

Increase at New York 15-8 Cents and at London Half Penny; Chinese Government Puts 10 Per Cent Tax on All Exports

Large Shipments Affected By Levy

Canadian Press

New York, Oct. 15.—Foreign silver for domestic industrial use was advanced another 1/16 an ounce here to-day to 55 1/16, the highest level since 1929, and 5 1/16 cents above the price at which the metal was nationalized by the United States government last summer.

To-day's advance in New York followed a further rise of 1/16 penny for the white metal in the London market, which carried it to 24 1/16 pence an ounce ($4 15-16 cents), also the highest mark since 1929.

RISE AT LONDON

London, Oct. 15.—The price of silver rose a half penny on the London market to 24 1/16 pence ($4 15-16 cents), its highest price since May, 1929, under strong speculative demand caused by China's export tax on silver. The belief was the price would go still higher.

It was reported China had sent silver orders to London, but the speculative demand was sufficiently good to register an advance and maintain a steady undertone.

Bullion brokers were greatly interested in the Shanghai announcement of a 10 per cent. tax. One pointed out the present market was bullish, and prices should go higher. Another expressed the opinion that was always uncertainty as to what the United States was going to do.

CHINA'S TAX

Shanghai, Oct. 15.—China gave its answer to-day to the United States silver policy—a 10 per cent. tax on all exports of the metal.

The Nationalist Government, after weeks of deliberation on the situation, put the tax into effect to-day, deeming unsatisfactory the reply of the United States.

squad responsible for the assassinations at Marseilles, was reported seen in Geneva to-day, causing a sensation.

Police stated "the Doctor," otherwise known as Egon Kvaternik, or Kramar, had been spotted here and immediately spread a dragnet throughout the city and its suburbs.

French police, headed by Commissary Petit of Annemasse, where two confessed members of the Balkan terrorist gang were first induced to reveal their alleged share in the plot, rushed to Geneva and conferred with police here.

French police said they were convinced that the assassination had failed at Marseilles and Paris, an attempt would have been made at Lausanne, where the King of Yugoslavia had intended to consult a specialist for throat trouble.

GREAT SEARCH
Paris, Oct. 15.—A search of all Europe for Dr. Ante Pavelich and Gustav Perce, named as Balkan terrorist chiefs by confessed fellow conspirators of the assassin Petrus Kalem, was begun to-day to stamp out what police call a "gang of international assassins."

Fears for the lives of Yugoslav Government leaders spurred the search of "higher-ups" along with three fugitive members of the "suicide squad," including a beautiful Slav girl, associates of Kalem.

Jugoslav officials have revealed the real name of King Alexander's assassin was Vlado Georgiev Tchernomir, a notorious Macedonian terrorist and associate of Ivan Mihailoff, whom they held responsible for several previous assassinations.

Photographs of Pavelich and Perce were broadcast to police of all countries in Europe after a conference between French and Yugoslav secret service chiefs. Yugoslav terrorism of recent years has been attributed to the hand of Belgrade officials.

The missing Egon Kvaternik, or Kramar, who has been identified as the mysterious "Doctor" acting as the band's advance agent, was already wanted in connection with a bombing explosion in a Belgian police station last April, French authorities were told.

Search for the trio was concentrated in the region of Lausanne and Geneva, Switzerland, where they were suspected of hiding in homes of sympathizers. If they still remained in France, police thought it likely they had found refuge in Paris.

Kvaternik was called the chief of the "assassination squad" by Yugoslav authorities who described him as a twenty-four-year-old law student born at Zagreb, whose first name was Eugene.

He was called "the delegate," including French, by Yugoslav police. He was believed by police to have maintained a liaison among the other four, giving them orders, money and arms.

A combined drive was planned at Lausanne by heads of Swiss, French and Yugoslav detective forces. They worked on information which had been supplied by Ivan Rajitch and Zvonimir Pospeschik, claimed by police to have confessed to plotting another assassination in Belgrade at Annecy, waiting a probable death sentence.

A widespread hunt throughout France and Switzerland was set on foot for Marie Viodroch, beautiful "Gingini" member of the band, but police appeared to be having little success in their quest.

MEET AT LAUSANNE
Swiss officials said a meeting of the plotters of King Alexander's death was held at Lausanne September 28, where "the minutest detail" of the assassination was planned with machiavellian cunning.

The huge gang, they asserted, worked with a "cell" system, under which each member knew only two others. Often they stayed at the same hotels without knowledge of their confederates' existence.

French authorities ordered the vigilance of frontier patrols redoubled in the belief some of the gang are lurking near the border waiting for an opportunity to slip into Switzerland. Paris police continued a "clean-up" drive against foreign agitators. The expedition was ordered by Rene Ruyon, an Australian woman accused of distributing Croat revolutionary tracts.

Polling in Departments Shows People Still Squarely Behind Government

Canadian Press from Paris, Oct. 15.—Final tabulations in the nation-wide departmental elections published by the Ministry of Interior bore out the trend of a week ago, showing the French government in its battle against the United Socialist and Communist front.

The first ballot of a week ago, in the 1,518 seats at issue in the various departmental councils provided a signal victory for the government.

Yesterday's balloting on 317 seats, which had not received a sufficient majority last week, brought only slight changes which did not affect the main setup.

The Communist branch of the United Socialist and Communist front gained seventeen seats. The moderate branches of the National Front (government parties) gained. The Radicals, backing the Doumergue government, lost considerably, while the Republican Democratic Union, also aligned with the government, gained ground.

Victory of the extreme right was at the expense of the Radicals and Centre. The Radical Socialist (government) retained their predominant position, cornering a total of 34 seats.

Although obtaining the highest total of seats, the figure showed a loss of nineteen seats over the previous Radical Socialist alignment.

GAINS AND LOSSES
The total seats obtained by the various parties, with gains and losses of each, stacked up as follows:

Conservative Union 275, gained 17.
Popular Democrats 26, gained 11.
Radical Socialist 249, gained 19.
Independent Radicals 148, lost 24.
Radicals and Radical Socialists 494, lost 19.

Radical Socialists 64, lost 5.
New Socialists 23, lost 1.
Socialist Party 118, gained 3.
Communists 54, gained 17.

Forty Loggers Return to Work

Under the protection offered by the citizens of Port Alberni forty loggers returned to work at the Alberni Pacific camp this morning, according to a message received by the provincial police. It was not reported whether these were new hands or some of the 250 who went on strike.

Police, he, as a brilliant collaborator of Clemenceau, was Poincare's bitter political enemy, but nevertheless became a firm friend and often saw him.

M. Tardieu knew better, perhaps, than any other how the two big Great War statesmen, Poincare and Clemenceau—put aside their deep dislike, even hatred, for each other for the good of the country.

Terrible scenes were reported from the dark subterranean claim where 1,200 men are starving and near death because the mine owners refused to give them more than two days' employment weekly and to pay more than 10 cents a day.

The government hastened to force the company owning the mine to meet the miners' demands, fearing it might lead to competition with the government-owned mines.

Five trade unionist delegates were seized as hostages after going below yesterday to negotiate for the miners' demands.

Control of the necessary power for the mine pumps is in the government's hands, making it impossible for the strikers to carry out a threat of cutting their supplies off and suffocate or drown.

His Lordship condemned the action of Crown Prosecutor Leighton in submitting evidence in the form of a number of keys, which he said was "irrelevant and immaterial."

Three witnesses were heard in the case when His Lordship dismissed the jury. The court adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10.30 o'clock.

The decision of the judge created a sensation in court.

The United States to negotiations for "co-operation."

Provisions of the export tax are flexible and the government is expected to change it whenever necessary to hold exports within limits required by balance of payments.

CHECK ON SHIPMENTS
Some $20,000,000 of silver in Chinese money, scheduled for departure this week for London and America, will be subject to the tax, expected to halt a major share of future shipment.

A statement by the Nationalist government said the step was taken "in view of the undue rise in silver, out of relation to the level of general commodity prices" and "in order to safeguard China's economic interests and protect its currency."

The Silver Purchase Act, passed at the last session of the United States Congress, directed purchases by the treasury of the metal until it reached a 35-27 ratio to gold, as a monetary reserve. To acquire that reserve, silver has been purchased in China.

In his note to Chinese Minister of Finance Dr. H. H. Kung, dated October 12, United States Secretary Cordell Hull said he had tried to indicate to the Chinese minister in Washington the purposes animating the government in its silver purchasing programme. "The ways and means to be used in carrying out this objective are left within the discretion of the executive, but of course must be consistent with the achievement of that objective," he said.

During discussions over the Silver Purchase Act, the administration told the Senate silver bloc it regarded the metal as a commodity, to be bought and sold like any other.

A hint that the two governments might reach an understanding on purchases and other monetary matters, perhaps, was contained in the assertion by Secretary Hull that "free markets in which gold or silver could be acquired by purchasers are now open to all nations, and therefore direct inter-governmental transactions have not been undertaken."

CHURCH FIGHT INGERMANY

Members predicted they would effect Meiser's reinstatement, which would give Chancellor Hitler his first set-back in the drive to complete the reorganization of Germany.

COULD NOT FIND CHURCH
An indication of the solid front was shown by the inability of Hans Sommerer, new commissioner of Bavaria to find a church large enough to pray Sunday. Threats that police would use force failed to keep Bishop Meiser's supporters away from church.

Two policemen are guarding Meiser day and night, and he is refused permission to walk in his courtyard. He is still alive, despite being hit with a cold when she was taken away in a negligee and a light coat—might be hidden in one of those little caverns.

Most of them spoke freely, although their leaders were suspected and under arrest, and they themselves were believed to face a similar fate.

A manifesto holding Reichsbishop Meiser and Dr. August Jaeger, commissioner of Protestant Churches in Prussia, responsible for "the triumph of violence and hypocrisy," was distributed in the streets of Berlin.

Two Nazi churchmen the manifesto said: "Through them Satan does his work."

With all available law forces massed in a hunt for the wealthy young victim, the primary consideration was still for her safety—coming before making any progress in the case.

Most promising of the clues run down by the officers to-day seemed to be that suggested by the reported sighting of a woman who looked like Mrs. Stoll in Warren County half way between Louisville and Nashville. It was in that direction that B. V. Stoll, the husband, drove furiously last Friday.

That section of Kentucky is honeycombed with caves. Besides every hill and opening into every valley, they lie in hundreds. The region is wild and sparsely settled.

Higher Standards Of Morality Urged

Canadian Press
Toronto, Oct. 15.—There was a challenge before the Salvation Army in the low standards of morality, strong drink and lack of prayer in the world, declared Commissioner James Hay in his last Sunday evening sermon before retiring as head of the army in Canada. He addressed members of the army yesterday evening during the fifty-second congress of the Ontario body.

"Society is in danger through moral infection," he said. "The hesitating souls are doing much mischief to God, to church circles and even in the Salvation Army." Young women were smoking, parents were not leading the life they should and society suffered from "sexual rottenness," he stated.

CENSORSHIP MOVE DENIED

Republicans' News Charge Against Roosevelt Unfounded, Says Farley

Associated Press
Washington, Oct. 15.—Senator David Schall, Republican, Minnesota, to-day had reiterated the United States government intended to establish a censored news service and Postmaster-General James Farley denied it.

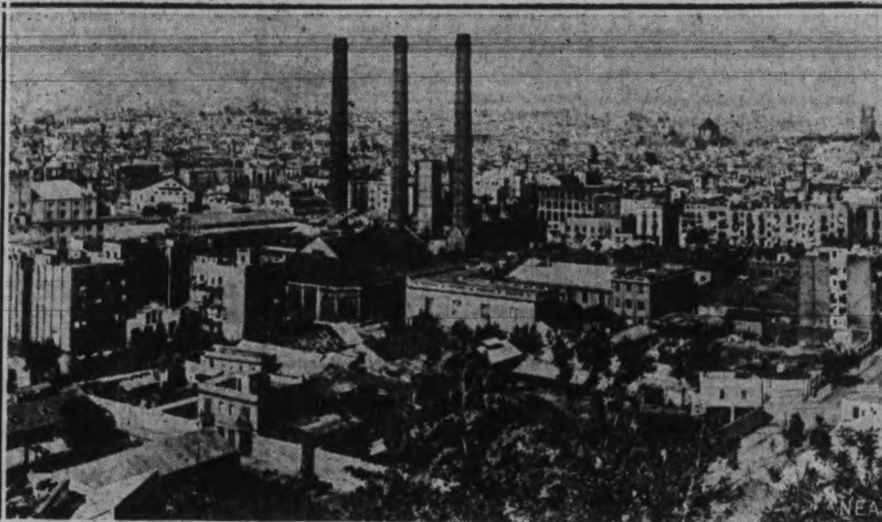

Said Mr. Schall in a statement here: "The censored news service will have the inside track on all government news and will be available to all newspapers willing to print news colored to the satisfaction of President Roosevelt. Plans are now being made to join all foreign radio stations in the news service so the Roosevelt news service will have full coverage of all foreign news."

Postmaster-General Farley said in a speech at New York: "All this talk about the administration establishing a censorship of radio and press in order to perpetuate its existence is only the cry of desperation on the part of a weak and discredited minority—which is growing more important daily. There is no desire or intention on the part of anyone in authority to establish any kind of censorship of the press or radio."

TRAIN KILLS MAN

Vancouver, Oct. 15.—A man police identified as Whitelaw, fifty, was struck and killed by a Great Northern train while walking along the tracks about nine miles from here yesterday. As far as could be learned by police, the man was unemployed and resided in a shack on Borden Avenue, near the scene of the accident. An inquest will be held.

POPE IS HEARD BY MILLIONS

Speaks By Radio From Vatican to Eucharistic Congress at Buenos Aires

Associated Press Foreign Staff
Vatican City, Oct. 15.—Pope Pius, preaching in Latin to hundreds of thousands of persons assembled at the Eucharistic Congress at Buenos Aires yesterday, lamented the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister of France.

True peace, the pontiff said, with great earnestness, could be found only in the Kingdom of Christ. The Pope spoke in a strong, resonant voice from his private library, the Vatican wireless station picking up his words and broadcasting them to the other side of the world, where the closing ceremonies of the great religious congress were taking place. The address was also re-broadcast by Italian stations to all parts of Europe, so the pontiff's words reached millions of listeners.

"The poor world, which we are afflicted with fraternal and regal bloodshed," the Pope said, "will be able to find true and stable peace only from so many evils, only where the peace of Christ in the Kingdom of Christ rules and offers promise." Pope Pius then delivered the apostolic benediction to the crowd gathered at Buenos Aires. His Holiness first listened to the pontifical mass being celebrated at Buenos Aires under the leadership of Cardinal Pacelli, brought to the conclusion of the Vatican library by means of the wireless telephonic hookup.

GREAT THROUGH
Buenos Aires, Oct. 15.—More than 1,000,000 persons jamming Palermo Park and nearby streets yesterday heard a greeting and benediction from Pope Pius, speaking by wireless from the Vatican, on the last day of the Eucharistic Congress here.

His Holiness pronounced a four-minute benediction in Latin, and Pontifical Mass was celebrated by Cardinal Pacelli, papal delegate. Bright sunshine enhanced the colorful spectacle made by the immense throng as five cardinals, 150 bishops and archbishops and hundreds of priests took part in the ceremony.

The exact number of those present could hardly be calculated. They filled the park and its environs. After the park and the crowd knelt reverently as numerous loud-speakers brought clearly the voice of the Pope. Then, prompted by the apostolic blessing, the crowd knelt and the ceremony ended.

B.N.A. ACT IS UNDER DEBATE

Hon. F. Rinfret, M.P., Says Quebec Liberals Oppose Some of Proposed Changes

Canadian Press
St. John's, Que., Oct. 15.—Proposed amendments to the British North America Act would be fought tooth and nail by the Liberal M.P. Fernand Rinfret, M.P., former Secretary of State and ex-mayor of Montreal, told a rally of Liberals here yesterday.

He said the act represented security for residents of the province of Quebec since it enabled them to retain their language and their rights. He said the act represented security for the province of Quebec since it enabled them to retain their language and their rights.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMMISSION
Should the Liberals be returned to power at the next general election, one of the first things it would do would be to establish a Dominion commission on unemployment to investigate the situation and make recommendations for a solution.

He declared the ousting of Premier R. B. Bennett was "absolutely essential to the return of prosperity." The great mass of the people felt that also, he said, and had proved it in the recent Ontario by-elections.

Toronto Audience Hears Tom Ewen
Toronto, Oct. 15.—Tom Ewen, former secretary of the Workers' Unity League and one of the eight Communists sent to the Kingston penitentiary, was publicly welcomed to Toronto yesterday at a mass meeting in a downtown theatre. Ewen was recently released from the penitentiary. Sam Carr, another of the convicted Communists, addressed the meeting.

New Tests Of Tar Sands Made

If Process is Success Deposits in North Alberta Will Yield Much Oil

Canadian Press
Edmonton, Oct. 15.—Canada to-day was waiting for the completion at Toronto of tests on McMurray, Alta., tar sands which, if successful, will mean, in the language of an economic survey issued by the Alberta government, "the complete independence of the British Empire for oil."

The survey was issued Saturday by the publicity branch of the Alberta government, and Howard Stutchbury, Alberta trade commissioner, confirmed the tests were being made at Toronto, and there was every indication of success.

There are great deposits of tar sands at McMurray, nearly 800 miles north of Edmonton.

Max Ball of Denver, the survey said, had been conducting the experiments at Toronto. It was stated that recently he had evolved a process of treating them that promised to solve the problem of separating the hydro-carbons in the bituminous sands.

RODEO IS SEEN IN NEW YORK
Two Alberta Cowboys Winners in Bareback Riding Contests

Canadian Press
New York, Oct. 15.—Canada's performance would seem to have knee action de luxe.

Take yesterday's programme at the Madison Square Garden for instance. The boys from the Dominion's rolling prairies did not do so well when encountered by saddles in their attempts to "bust" woolly broncos but once a saddle was stripped off and there was a chance to dig knees between the ribs of the kicking, snorting, bad-tempered horses, there was not anything to stand up against the riding of a couple of Alberta hoppers.

At the afternoon show, Herman Linden of Cardston dug his knees into the sides of a crawling fish-bay called Old Man of the Mountain and he stuck there as though he were glued. He won that chapter of the bareback contest without so much as losing his sombrero.

In the same class at the evening performance, George McIntosh, out of Calgary, won just as easily as giving away $100. He'll be a big winner.

RAYMOND POINCARÉ

RAYMOND POINCARÉ, THE LAST OF
France's four great war chiefs, died early this morning at the ripe age of seventy-four years, described by friends as "just worn out." It is believed that the recent assassination at Marseille grieved him more deeply than his immediate friends thought at first. He knew King Alexander well and, of course, Louis Barthou was his life-long friend. Death came only after a very short illness and he had expected to leave in a week or so for his annual sojourn on the Riviera.

War-time President of France, M. Poincaré resigned the Premiership and retired from active political life five years ago, although he had just been re-elected to a departmental council seat after a spectacular physical comeback. Of the school of noted French statesmen that were his contemporaries—which included Viviani, Briand and Caillaux—there remain only Millerand, Doumergue, the present Premier, and Caillaux, while his three prominent war-time associates, Foch, Joffre, and Clemenceau, already have passed on.

Raymond Poincaré was the son of a distinguished civil servant and meteorologist. He was educated at the University of Paris, was called to the Paris bar, and was for a time law editor of Le Voltaire. As deputy for the Meuse, he made a great reputation for himself as an economist, and he sat on the budget commissions of 1890-1891-1892. In the first cabinet of Charles Dupuy he administered the portfolio of Minister of Education, Fine Arts and Religion, and was Minister of Finance in succeeding cabinets. In the autumn of 1895 he became vice-president of the Chamber of Deputies, and in spite of the bitter hostility of the Radicals, he held the position until 1897. In 1912 M. Poincaré formed his first government in which he himself held the portfolio of Foreign Affairs.

It was in January, 1913, that the National Assembly elected M. Poincaré President of the French Republic. Two days after he had assumed his post he addressed a message to Parliament, reminding its members, among other things, that "the will of one power alone was not enough to maintain peace, and any nation that wished to give proof of its pacifist attitude, must be ready at all times to meet and repulse any military attack which might be made against it."

This allusion to the danger of war showed that the new President was fully alive to its possibility; and that this fear was well grounded events were soon to justify. Seeing that the menace from without continued to increase, M. Poincaré felt that while adhering strictly to the limits imposed upon his powers by the French constitution, his first duty must be to back up all those who were endeavoring to strengthen the defensive organization of the country. Never once, however, did he exceed his functions in this respect, and the men to whom he entrusted the government were always those who had the support of Parliament.

When the news of the Austrian ultimatum reached M. Poincaré in July, 1914, he was on his way back from a visit to Russia and had to abandon paying his respects to three Scandinavian capitals, with the exception of a brief stay in Stockholm. He returned hastily to Paris and, in a letter to King George V, pleaded for a clear declaration that the Entente Cordiale, if necessary, would prove its strength on the battlefield, pointing out that such a statement would have a restraining effect on the policy of Vienna and Berlin.

When the world gets a little further away from the tragic events which followed the war it may be found that if Poincaré had had more in common with Clemenceau and had called him in before the winter of 1917, a different history of the Great War could have been written. Yet, again, during the peace negotiations his divergence of views became apparent between himself and Clemenceau. Indeed, on more than on occasion the President deemed it necessary to write to the Prime Minister, pointing out what he considered the errors which, from his point of view, were being committed.

Poincaré served seven years as President, and in 1920 he left the presidential residence. In 1922, he succeeded M. Briand—the marathon Premier of France—and became Prime Minister and Minister for Foreign Affairs. His principal object at this stage was that of getting from Germany what was due to France with regard to reparations. During this period—in 1923—the unfortunate experience of the Ruhr invasion took place—costly for France because it did not have the effect of forcing payment but put her to much expense; and it was a policy with which Great Britain did not agree.

However, no matter what Poincaré's political troubles were, he had a brilliant mind, and, in the terms of to-day's dispatches, is referred to as "the last of the great men," some commentators asking "where will France find new ones?" Perhaps this may be a fitting epitaph for Raymond Poincaré.

ANOTHER OUTSPOKEN DEAN

"Let us create and control our own money; let us make it as costless and subordinate to industry as railway tickets are to railways; and let us see that our money tickets reach the pockets of the whole consuming public in equitable quantities and adequate ways."—The Very Reverend Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, addressing the Assembly of the Congregational Union at Croydon, England, the other day.

THE SUBJECT THE DEAN WAS DIScussing was "Threats to Liberty in the Forces Behind Dictatorships." And we are told that he electrified his hearers by a denunciation of the "private monopoly of money," such as a church gathering has never heard before in Britain.

In his dispatch to the Southern newspapers of Canada, Mr. A. C. Cummings tells us that the Dean of Canterbury is an unusual type of church dignitary. He holds a scientific degree, is a geologist and editor, and is noted for his advanced ideas on social questions. Before he spoke to the Congregational Assembly, a discussion had taken place on "The Christian Approach to Economic Reconstruction," and a sectional conference of the church had decided that more attention should be given to the study of economic problems in the churches of all denominations. The general opinion was that the present economic system had broken down.

We quote again from the dispatch. Dr. Hewlett Johnson to show how great, in his opinion, that breakdown had been, said: "Though physically rich, witness our wholesale destructions: 26,000,000 bags of coffee, 6,000,000 milk cows, and so on; witness, too, our wholesale restrictions, 121,000,000 pounds of tea and millions of bushels of wheat—and though we have the machines and men to remove all present want, and the inventors and organizers able to increase wealth beyond all dreams, yet we are financially poor and bidden to economize, to tighten our belts, to starve amidst bulging warehouses and fruitful fields."

"To save English liberty," said the Dean, "important things are necessary. First, to regain the sovereign right of creating and controlling our own money. Secondly, to create money in the interest of industry."

"None of these things obtain to-day. First, we do not create our own money. Private companies, with the so-called Bank of England at their head, create over ninety per cent of English money. They create it 'out of the blue' and levy perpetual toll for doing so. Banks create and destroy our money—I refer you to the report of the government's Macmillan Commission—and he who creates money and flings it on the market or withdraws it again controls prices and fixes wages; he wields sovereign powers. His Holiness Pope Pius XI rightly recognizes this when he says in words more drastic than I now utter, 'Control of financial policy is the very life-blood of the entire economic body.'"

"Secondly, industry is the slave of money interests. The quantity of goods produced is regulated by the quantity of money available, not the quantity of money by the quantity of goods. We restrict production to an artificially restricted market."

"Finance ceases to reflect reality. Money should, in fact, be as costless and subordinate to industry as tickets to a railway. What mad railway company would dispatch empty carriages while passengers clamored at the barriers for seats, and say the tickets have run out and the printers refuse a fresh issue? What railway indeed would allow, as we do, a private firm to traffic in its tickets at all?"

ALEX. MARLING

GOLFERS IN VICTORIA—INDEED,
golfers throughout Canada, to-day will have learned with the most profound regret that Alex Marling, the popular professional at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club, has passed away after but an illness of a few days. Only last Tuesday, coming over from Vancouver, where he had been playing in an invitation tournament at Hastings Park, he merely complained that he did not feel well; but he thought little of it. The fates, unhappily, decreed otherwise, and the members of the Colwood club and a legion of friends who knew him well and admired him for his fine sporting qualities will be feeling blue to-day. Alex Marling was a Scot who took to his golf naturally. He shouldered arms in the Great War and lost an eye—a handicap which prevented him from doing as well as he otherwise would have done in major competitive tournaments. But he never complained. He kept his genial smile to the end. And many young golfers in this community are thanking their lucky stars to-day that they were pupils of Alex Marling. The condolences of many will go out to his widow and family in their bereavement.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

ARGENTINA'S LITTLE WAY
The Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

After exceeding its quota by 40,000,000 bushels in the last crop year, Argentina is to have its quota increased from 110,000,000 to 150,000,000 bushels. Maybe the London conference is just rewarding Argentina for the way it lived up to, or did not live up to, the agreement. Or perhaps it is merely that the conference figures 150,000,000 is the utmost that Argentina can grow for export, any way.

THE EMACIATED TIGER
The Philadelphia Inquirer

The sudden capitulation of Tammany Hall to the national administration has been explained. Big Chief Dooley proudly announces that the day after his accession he handed out between twenty and twenty-five federal jobs. It is true that they were only minor places, but Dooley intimates that he expects to distribute some while he is in the near future. One fairly juicy bit is the United States Marshalship. It is something new to find Tammany gratefully accepting favors from a federal administration, but it may be that when a tiger gets really hungry it becomes as meek as a kitten.

BUSINESS COURAGE
The Washington Post

Secretary Roper's observation that "business is better than business sentiment" is both candid and accurate. No one questions the evidence that the United States, along with other countries, is gradually pulling out of the depression. Statistics in many lines of economic endeavor show these improvements. Yet the business world is still confronted by an uncertainty which would seem in part to be readily removable. "If business courage were equal to the business statistics," says Mr. Roper, "we would be in need of controlling a real business boom."

A THOUGHT

The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, nor the children be put to death for the fathers, but every man shall be put to death for his own sin.—It Kings xiv 6.

Nature holds an immense uncollected debt over every man's head.—Decher.

Loose Ends

Yes, but that's only one-tenth of the story—the radio suffers a grave injustice—there are kind hearts in Esquimalt—and the baby chick fails to appear and say "Peep, peep, peep."

By H. B. W.

THE SYSTEM

THIS PAPER complained the other night that while the Canadian banks are being permitted to pay depositors only 2 per cent interest, they loan these deposits out at 6, 7 and 8 per cent. Thus, it protested, the banks make a profit of 4, 5 and 6 per cent on your money.

But that is only a small part of the story, about one-tenth of the story. The banks make 6, 7 and 8 per cent not on your deposits alone, but on ten times your deposits. If you deposit $1, the banks proceed to loan $10 to ten different people, all secured by your $1. They create $9 out of advertising but a stroke of the pen on a ledger.

If the banks only loaned out your money at a high profit, the bank deposits of the country would equal the total currency at most. But actually, while the currency is around 200 million, the bank deposits usually stand around two billion. In 1929, to be exact, Canada had gold reserves of $77,000,000, $181,000,000 of notes in circulation, $160,000,000 of cash in circulation, and—mark this well—$1,844,000,000 in bank deposits.

How come, you may say, that there is roughly ten times as much money on deposit in the banks as there is in actual existence? The answer, of course, is that when you deposit your dollar, the banks create ten dollars out of ink and paper and loan it to people who promptly redeposit it in the banks.

And this, little children, with only $77,000,000 in gold reserves against circulating exchange medium of around $2,000,000,000, is known as the good old gold standard. It is safe. It is sure. It is profitable for those who control it. It is easily the wildest joke in history.

PEACE

THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES these days a tremendous clamor is arising against the radio. The radio proportionately that people are refusing to listen in on many programmes. Companies that spend huge sums on radio advertising are beginning to suspect the obvious fact that people may not hear what they are talking about at all.

I do not share this general public revulsion against music that is interrupted every two minutes by talks on mouth washes. I find the radio a tremendous source of peace and quiet in the home. I mean, you can never really have a truly still and peaceful room can be of an evening until you have turned on the radio, listened to the mouth washes for a while and then turned it off again. Then, and not till then, can you appreciate the separable boon of silence.

I wouldn't be without the mouth washes for the world. They give you that same feeling of comfort and security that you feel when it is snowing outside and you are sitting before a blazing fire. Our thanks are due to the man who invented the radio, but the great saviour of the age is the man who invented the gadget to turn it off.

KIND HEARTS

ACCORDING TO LETTERS to this newspaper, the enterprising municipality of Esquimalt has reduced unemployment relief allowances to $10.44 per month for a married man, no matter how many dependents he may have, while unmarried men get the adequate sum of $6 a month to maintain them in idle luxury. The general acde prevailing throughout the province is that a married man with his wife and one child something under $25 a month and $3.50 a month for each other child.

As I have said here before, I have

SIDE GLANCES

By George Clark

"Oh, mother talks a lot, but how many times has she married 'just for money'?"

asked cabinet ministers, mayors, aldermen and city relief officers to the number of perhaps fifty in the last two years to explain to me precisely how people live on this money. All of them sighed or swore profanely and said they hadn't any idea, and they obviously didn't want to have. The thing was too disagreeable to think about. It was only last Saturday that a cabinet minister told me the relief allowance, to use his own picturesque phrase, was a sin against the Holy Ghost, that they were insufficient to keep one properly alive, but sufficient to rob one of the merciful comfort of death by starvation.

The Province says it is restricted in its allowances by the Federal Government and the Federal Government says it is restricted by lack of money, and there you are. But if this business is going on much longer, the laws of Canada should provide that before any man offers himself for the office of cabinet minister, mayor, alderman or relief administrator, he must prove that he has lived, with his wife and family, on $25 a month for at least six months (Esquimalt candidates will get only $10.44, or $6 if they are single).

Then we shall have men in office who, when they promise the solution of unemployment, as they all do before election, will know what unemployment means. Also we shall then be ruled by a much wiser and more graceful-looking race of cabinet ministers, mayors, aldermen and relief administrators. And then, also, something may really be done about unemployment for the first time since the depression.

EGGS

YOU KNOW what my brother has been up to? Well, you know the little girl from next door, after she had rolled in, my newly-collected pile of oak leaves and scattered them to the four winds of heaven, so that I should have to collect them all over again.

"You know what my brother has been up to? Well, you never guess, I guess. Golly, but boys are terrible, aren't they, especially when they're your brother."

"Eggs," said her brother gloomily and without further explanation.

"I'll say it was eggs," said she. "Well, you know Mrs. Shipley well, she had a hen that set on some eggs for months and months and after while some little chickens came out of the eggs, as soft and smooth as anything and said 'Peep, peep, peep.'"

"Eggs," her brother repeated with solemnity. "Well, that brother of mine—he's only a boy, you know and needs a bit when he talks his porridge and still drinks his bathwater even—well, he saw the hen sitting on the eggs where the little baby chickens came out."

"Eggs," he said again, with a deeper melancholy. "And so to-day Mrs. Shipley, she gave my brother a nice big egg for himself to take home and it was still warm out of the nest in the barn. So my brother said to me, he said, 'Let's keep the egg warm and after a while a little baby chicken will come out and say 'peep, peep, peep.' So we brought the egg home and my brother he put it on some straw in the basement and then, what do you think?"

"I couldn't think," I said.

"Oh, oh," said her brother, sunk in deepest gloom.

"Well, said she, 'he sat right down on the egg to keep it warm so a little baby chicken would come out and say 'peep, peep, peep.' And he sat and sat and sat for a long time, but no chickens came out and said 'peep, peep, peep.' But pretty soon my brother, he began to feel a little dampish where he was sitting. 'I feel funny,' he said. 'Maybe the little chicken is pecking you,' I said. But it wasn't a little chicken. What do you think?"

"I couldn't think," I said. "I guess," said her brother with supreme mortification. "Yes, the egg was broken all over," she said. "And does an egg get dampish on your 'ants when it's broken?" Her brother rubbed his little trousers very thoroughly.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES
October 15, 1909
(From The Times Files)

Though no official announcement has as yet been made respecting the date of the forthcoming provincial elections, there is great activity in both Liberal and Conservative camps, and the popular expectation is that the Premier will very shortly ask for a dissolution.

The Canadian Club this afternoon entertained as its guest Sir Percy Fitzpatrick, a distinguished member of the opposition in the South African Parliament.

The City Council will be asked by the school board to place before the electorate at the 1910 civic elections a by-law for the raising of $150,000 for the purpose of securing a site and erecting thereon a new high school.

To bring to a close the first season among local bowlers, the members of the Victoria Bowling Club will hold its last tournament at the Beacon Hill rink to-morrow afternoon, when a series of games will be played.

To-morrow afternoon at the Oak Bay Park the first rugby game of the season will be played when the Victoria Rugby Club will face a fifteen captained by Billy Newcomb. This latter team has been referred to as the Victoria Rugby Club, but in to-morrow's game they will just be a picked team.

Frederick Arthur Pauline of this city has been appointed to be a pilotage commissioner for the district of Victoria and Esquimalt.

Alex McDermott, manager of the Victoria and Vancouver Stevedoring Company, and of the Victoria branch of the Puget Sound Tugboat company has gone to Seattle and will spend a few days at the Green River Hot Springs.

Mrs. W. Dismore and Mrs. Dr. William Russell are spending this week in Vancouver visiting with their sister, Mrs. F. M. Hackett.

The Victoria Fire Department officers presented a brilliant scene last night, when some 200 people were the guests of Chief Thomas Davis and his men at the first "at home" the department has held since the arrival of the new chief.

EXHIBIT AT FAIR HALTED

Anti-vivisectionists Question
Legality of Experiments on Animals

At a recent board meeting of the local Anti-vivisection Society considerable time was given to discussion of animal experiments and the legality of such experiments, particularly by young students.

It was claimed that their effect is mentally and morally harmful. The matter was referred to the Local Council of Women. By its prompt action the local society was able to prohibit an undesirable exhibition arranged for the fall fair, the Mayor Leaning, president of the society, and the chief officials of the Agricultural Association readily co-operated.

It has been decided to obtain legal opinion regarding the legality of animal experimentation. Any information relative to such experiments may be sent to the secretary and will be treated as confidential.

The board unanimously agreed that in the event of state health insurance becoming a fact, all persons subscribing to such a scheme should have the right to choose any medical practitioner they may approve, regardless of cost.

A permanent shop has been procured beneath the offices of the British Union for Abolition of Vivisection, Whitehall, London, with reading room and lecture hall. This will constitute the Huxley Memorial and will be an enduring tribute to the late Walter R. Huxley, J.P., M.D., L.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., L.S.A., president of that organization.

Report was made on the recent successful World Day for Animals celebration, which was largely supported. Several new members have been admitted to the local society, including two from Saskatchewan.

The next house meeting of the society will be held late in October. Particulars and information will be supplied by Miss Dora Kito, honorary secretary, 315 Sayward Building, Victoria.

YOUTH RALLY PLANS MADE

Plans are well under way for the holding of a youth rally in the Chamber of Commerce on the night of Wednesday, October 24.

The purpose of the rally is to bring together all sections of youth in Victoria and district, with the intention of forming a strong organization of young people of the ages of eighteen and thirty-five.

The rally is being organized by the Federated Council of Youth and several well-known youth speakers will be heard. In addition to the speeches, there will be community singing and solo between speeches.

During the course of the rally, the meeting will be thrown open to discussion in the form of an open forum. It is hoped that the young people of Victoria and district will take the opportunity to express their views on the problems of youth today.

Among the speakers will be James Gibson, former Rhodes Scholar; Idelle Wilson of the London School of Economics; Harold Finch, young member of the Victoria League; and Don Smith, vice-president of the Youth Council. David Pierce, president of the Youth Council, will be in the chair.

Horned Doe Is Shot on Island

Children Taken Too Seriously

By MRS. WALTER FERGUSON
I never mingle with a group of mothers without becoming more firmly convinced that we take our children too seriously.

In other words, we are so distressed with our parental responsibilities that we lose sight of the fact that about half the time our opinions are wrong.

It is no wonder, of course, that the modern mother is bewildered. She stands between the devil of psychology and the deep sea of sentimentalism. On the one side she hears that she must cast aside all her former coddling softness and on the other that nothing will work on her job save the sweet generalities that have so long been the earmarks of the maternal.

With whatever school she may be allied, I feel sure that a good hearty laugh at herself now and then would be a very good thing for every woman. We ought to get some perspective on ourselves. We should stand off and regard our obsessions to find out how funny we are, and how pathetic.

The average man loves his mother, but how seldom he listens to her. And the strange thing is that time so often prove the child, rather than the mother, to be right. This upsets our theories, but its glaring truth is not to be evaded.

And, after all, motherhood is no actual guarantee of infallibility—which is a thought we should keep in the forefront of our minds when we try to arrange our children's lives for them.

We trust to the decency of our neighbors and friends. We believe in the honesty of our grocer. We have a sort of fundamental faith in mankind. But, somehow, we are always in doubt about our children, which is only another way of giving ourselves a pat on the back. Parents should cultivate four essential habits: they contain the essence of all wisdom for the rearing of families—Laughter, Love, Leniency and Reliance.

ARE MARRIED IN VATICAN TO-DAY

Vatican City, Oct. 15.—No ceremony in the Vatican in many years that was not purely a papal one can compare with the marriage which took place this morning of Pope Pius's nephew, Count Franco Ratti, and Signorina Angela Maria Crespi, daughter of a millionaire Senator Silvio Crespi of Milan. Pope Pius himself performed the ceremony and gave the nuptial benediction in the Consistorial Hall. This was the first time a marriage has been performed by the Pope in the Vatican in eight years. In 1926 he married his niece Maria Luisa Ratti to Marquis Fuschetti-Ugolini. Count Franco Ratti is a forty-year-old engineer.

Pan-Pacific Women May Hold Next Triennial Here

Dean Mary L. Bollert Gives Interesting Resume of Honolulu Gathering, and Impressions of Japan Before University Women's Club

The next triennial meeting of the Pan-Pacific Women's Conference may possibly be held in 1937 in British Columbia, with Victoria and Vancouver as joint hostesses, according to Dean Mary L. Bollert, who recently returned from this year's conference held in the Hawaiian Islands. Miss Bollert made this statement in the course of her interesting and interesting address before the University Women's Club on Saturday evening when she gave her impressions of the deliberations and the delegates at this great rally of women representatives of all the countries bordering on the Pacific. The speaker also incorporated in her talk some personal observations on conditions in China and Japan, where she spent some time.

OUTSTANDING WOMEN—Touching upon some of the outstanding women who attended the gathering in Honolulu, Miss Bollert recalled Dr. Martha Jones, Ph.D., a dental specialist, who had been engaged in work among the thousands of Filipinos on the sugar plantations in the Philippines; Dr. Cass of Honolulu, and Dr. Kashioki of Los Angeles, who had given interesting talks at a round-table discussion on the education of young men and women for parenthood, and the relations between the sexes; Mrs. Annie Barry, an authority on women in industry, who thought women had slipped back rather than gone forward in the industrial world in recent years.

PSYCHIATRIST'S COMMENT—One of the American women delegates brought information compiled by psychiatrists, concerning the large percentage of maladjusted students at Yale University, one of the figures quoted showing that 10 per cent were seriously maladjusted. Miss Bollert did not think that 10 per cent of the students at the University of British Columbia were quite so seriously affected, but she did admit that a percentage were suffering either from over-shyness, or lack of self-confidence, to such an extent that they would be seriously handicapped in starting out on a career in the modern world.

Of Japan, Miss Bollert described her impressions of its social, educational and economic conditions, noting that home industries flourished in the Orient.

"SWEATED" LABOR—The Osaka region of Japan was much like Lancashire. There were more women in the weaving industries than men. In addition to the women employed in factories, there were the women employed by factories in the homes, giving rise to a form of sweat-shop conditions that was a source of anxiety to thoughtful Japanese women. Among the home or "street" industries, that Miss Bollert had personally seen, were the manufacture of coat-hangers, now turned out by hand much more cheaply than they could be made even by machinery; the making of bed-comforters, turning, stretching, lace-making, brick-making, fire-cracker manufacture, and cooking of all kinds. Although there are factory inspectors both in China and Japan it was doubtful if they always reported conditions. Miss Bollert visited two factories, one for woollens, the other a cotton factory. Both of recent construction, she imagined they were rather show places. In one factory in China employing 4,000 men the entire process of china-making was explained to the visitors by means of drawings on the wall—so that they did not see the factory at all.

EMANCIPATION SLOW—The emancipation of Oriental women was a very slow process. Five times the women had been refused their place for the franchise by the Lower House in Japan.

Miss Bollert discovered that the education of men was devised along the lines of making them useful to the state, the army, and business, as well as a capable head of the family; education of the girl was devised along the lines of giving her a philosophy of life, to help her to settle her own sex problems, and to prepare her for motherhood, or some life vocation. In the last sixty years Japan had organized ninety-six institutions of higher education for men, and but two for women. Only in the elementary schools, and not for very long there, is there co-education in Japan.

Miss Thomas was in the chair, and Mrs. Jeanette Chan moved the vote of thanks, which was followed by the presentation, to the speaker, of a sheet of pale gold gladioli by Miss Rita Beveridge. The musical part of the programme was delightful, consisting of a pleasing performance by an instrumental trio of the "Petites Duo" in three movements. The members of the trio were Miss Dilworth, piano; Miss Fay Ockenden, violin, and Leslie Jordan, viola.

the hall, where Messrs. J. Aylwin and J. Oxendale took charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bain of Vancouver, who were married recently, were guests and received congratulations and best wishes. Mr. Bain is secretary of the Provincial Council.

The social programme opened with the grand march and comprised numerous amusing games, concluding with the presentation of short plays. Group one appeared smartly, acting the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," while group two humorously depicted the trials of having the family picture taken. Group three charmingly portrayed Cinderella and the Prince, and group four gave a comic interpretation of a mock wedding.

Refreshments were served by Miss M. Holyoke, assisted by St. Mark's A.Y.P.A. Dancing brought the entertainment to a close.

The next regular meeting of the Local Council will be held on October 18.

Nearly 1,500,000 bags of coffee were shipped from Colombia to the United States in the first six months of this year.

ADEQUATE DIETS NEEDN'T BE COSTLY, MRS. ELDRED DECLARES

"What about poor folks who are trying to pay back bills," Mrs. C. E. W. demands to know. "Should they go into debt to buy oranges and cod liver oil to give the baby?"

"I am asking this for the benefit of all poor mothers. A baby doesn't eat a great deal, that is true, but growing children do. Tell me an approximate daily portion of cod liver oil and oranges. I know I never had oranges and I am still living."

"I read somewhere that it wasn't a good thing to start children on perfect meals when you couldn't continue them. What age is best for a good diet, or when is it most necessary? I realize I am a question box, but lots of people would like to know."

These are vital questions and I am happy to answer them. There is real confusion in your mind between perfect and adequate. An adequate diet might be more monotonous than a perfect one, but not necessarily expensive.

The time when the right food materials are most needed is when the child is growing. A huge proportion of the baby's growing is done the first year. There is no way of side-stepping your responsibility for giving him the right foods then. The older we get the less we need growth foods.

though proper diets keep us in health.

TOMATOES EVERY DAY

But your baby, and the whole family can eat tomatoes in some form daily and get the juice of these substitutes for oranges. The juice saved from grated, raw potatoes, or carrots or cabbage can be used. Perhaps in your youth you "adored" raw vegetables. In that way you may have received your vitamin C supplies.

Baby has to have cereal daily, so do the growing children, and father and mother will find this a satisfying breakfast dish. Cook enough for the family, take out baby's portion, and if it is of coarse grain strain it and thin with boiled milk.

VEGETABLES AND VEGETABLE WATER

The family will eat some kind of vegetable daily, and baby's portion may be taken from that. If vegetables are cooked in a small amount of water and this cooking water retained, this will offer a cheap but valuable supply of mineral matter.

Cod liver oil is essential for the baby who can't have daily outings in a sunny, warm climate. Large bottles may be bought from a hospital clinic if you are in a position to receive clinic service. Better far to incur bills to pay for cod liver oil than for sick babies or to rectify the ailments of the bony structure or teeth, deformed for lack of it.

The Clue of The Forgotten Murder

By CARLETON KENDRAKE

Copyright, 1934, NKA Service Inc.

Dan Bleeker, seated at his desk, got up and went to the telephone. "Get me Sidney Griff, the criminologist. Tell him that I want to see him upon a matter of major importance. I probably won't have all the facts necessary to make a presentation of the case until after dinner to-night. I'd like to see him this evening."

Bleeker sat perfectly motionless. His body seemed relaxed. His attitude might have been mistaken for one of calm meditation upon some peaceful subject.

The telephone rang. Bleeker snapped the receiver from its rest and heard Ethel West say, "Mr. Griff will see you at 8.30 to-night if that is convenient."

"Quite," Bleeker said. "Now get me the editor of The Riverview Chronicle, in Riverview. Rush the call."

He dropped the receiver back into position but held his hand on it and when, within a matter of a minute and a half, the telephone rang, he snapped the receiver to his ear with a quick motion.

"Hello," he said, "is this Bleeker of The Riverview Chronicle? This is Dan Bleeker of The Bladder. I sent a man up to look over your clippings on Frank B. Cathay. A him any information. Did you give him any information?"

Bleeker listened for a short time, then nodded his head.

"Now," he said, "I want you to do something for me. There may be a big story in it. I want you to find out for me where Frank B. Cathay was yesterday afternoon. In the morning if possible, but in the afternoon for certain. I want to know every move he made. You can get the necessary expense and send the bill to me. He's what? Are you certain? Check that, will you? Find out about the doctor. See if you can approach the nurse. They probably have two or three. Get all the information you can and telephone it in just as quickly as you can. That may be a matter of major importance. I'm just asking you to extend me a courtesy which we have extended you in times past."

"You call me back just as soon as you find out," he said. "If I'm not here, you leave any information with Ethel West, my secretary."

Bleeker dropped the receiver back into position, left his private office and pounded through the outer office with swift, nervous strides. He turned to the right in the corridor, walked down a long, musty passageway, with a stockroom occupying the space on the left, a photographer's room with a series of dark rooms on the right. He passed a room from which came the clack of pounding typewriters driven at high speed, and pushed his way into Dick Kenney's private office.

"Telephoned Beckley of The Riverview Chronicle," he said, "for a report on Cathay. He tells me that Cathay was taken very suddenly and seriously ill yesterday morning and has been in bed ever since. I told him to verify it. Illness is something that can be faked very easily. We can't even be certain of the physician. Cathay is a prominent man but we can probably find out something from the nurse. Beckley is working on it."

"You think Cathay and Morden had a conference somewhere?" asked Kenney.

"I'm not thinking anything just yet," Bleeker told him. "I'm getting facts. I have an appointment for 8.30 to-night with Sidney Griff. What have you found out from headquarters?"

"It's Morden all right," Kenney said grimly. "They can't tell the exact time of death yet, but it was some time yesterday afternoon, probably the early part of the afternoon. He was dumped out in the abandoned

CHAPTER VIII

Dan Bleeker's face gave no hint of excitement. "Frank B. Cathay," he said, "died about twenty minutes ago. For some reason they were trying to hush up the news of his death. Beckley sent a veteran reporter out to the house. The reporter got wise to it. There were two doctors and there's a going to be a scandal. One of the doctors says Cathay was poisoned."

Kenney stared at Bleeker with wide, startled eyes. "Poisoned?" he said.

"That," said Kenney, "makes things look a little tough for his wife. I presume there was a lot of property."

"Around two million," Bleeker said. "How long had Cathay been sick?"

"He was taken sick yesterday morning. Apparently there's no question about the illness. He was stricken at his office. He was taken home and put to bed. As usual, the doctors fooled around with a lot of funny ideas, and then Cathay lost consciousness. This was about three o'clock yesterday afternoon. He's been unconscious ever since. He died without regaining consciousness."

"Then his wife," said Kenney, "must have known he was seriously ill."

Bleeker nodded his head in slow acquiescence.

"And," Kenney went on, "the man was on his deathbed when she and the lawyer made such a hurried trip down here to quash that libel case. Why did they do that if Cathay was going to die? Dead men can't bring libel suits. And it's not likely that their reputations will be blasted."

"Perhaps," Bleeker remarked, "they didn't know how serious the illness was when they came down."

Kenney gave a cynical laugh.

"If she gave him poison," he said, "she knew how serious the illness was."

Bleeker's tone was impatient.

"You use a lot of 'ifs'," he said. "As a matter of fact, if she did have anything to do with giving him the poison, she couldn't have given herself any better break than by coming down here with the family lawyer. It shows that she was loyal to her husband's interests, that she thought his sickness was the result of a nervous collapse from worrying over what we might do to his reputation. And she couldn't have possibly made a better gesture than would show she regarded the illness of her husband as relatively trivial."

Approve Many B.C. Hospitals

American College of Surgeons Endorses Majority of Provincial Institutions

Dr. Franklin H. Martin, founder and director general of the American College of Surgeons, in presenting to the hospital standardization movement of the college, stated:

"Hospital care in the United States and Canada, despite trying economic conditions of the last five years, has shown a most gratifying improvement in service. Hospitals approved by the American College of Surgeons have been successful in their determined efforts to provide efficient care for the sick and injured."

Dr. Martin explained that a hospital to obtain approval must comply with certain definite requirements laid down by the American College of Surgeons. These include particularly the maintenance of organized medical staffs of ethical, competent physicians, complete medical records, adequate laboratory and X-ray facilities, and a thorough review and analysis of the clinical work of the hospital each month so as to carefully check up the results of the professional activities within the hospital, and analyze and seek to improve them. It is the aim of the American College of Surgeons to assist the medical profession and hospitals in assuring to patients the best possible care.

Of 3,538 hospitals of twenty-five beds and over in the United States and Canada, which were included, this year in the survey of the American College of Surgeons, 2,480 were a place on the approved list.

Dr. Martin said that the importance to the public are revealed in this year's survey, says Dr. Martin. "The death rate in hospitals is even lower than that of last year, and the period of hospitalization has been shortened. Results have improved despite the fact that patients coming to hospitals to-day usually arrive in a more serious state, with more advanced condition than in former years, because of stringent economic conditions. More efficient medical and hospital services are evident through a material reduction in the number of chronic or incurable patients."

Medical and hospital service is making decided headway in its battle against disease, and is accomplishing truly wonderful achievements in its protection of the health and happiness of humankind."

Following is the list of hospitals in British Columbia which are complying with the requirements for approval and have been accorded a place on the approved list of the American College of Surgeons, the asterisk indicating "provisionally approved," or that hospitals so designated have accepted the minimum requirements and are endeavoring to carry them out, but for lack of time or other acceptable reasons have not been able to do so in every detail:

Boston Bruins of N.H.L. Will Continue to Run Minor League Club

Boston, Oct. 15.—Although shifting the scene of their home games from the Boston Garden to the old Boston Arena, Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, will continue to operate in the Canadian-American Hockey League, it was decided yesterday.

The verdict was reached after an all-day conference among Arthur H. Ross of the Bruins; George V. Brown, general manager of the Garden Arena; and James E. Dooley, president of the Philadelphia Arena, but that Herb Gardner had been retained by arena officials as coach and manager of the Bruins.

With five cities ready to operate, the Canadian-American League will wait until next Saturday, October 20, for Springfield interests to give a definite answer as to whether they will return to the circuit.

The governors voted to start the league's ninth season with a game between Boston and Quebec at Quebec, November 7. They also voted to continue the referee-lineman system of officiating.

In the event Springfield becomes the sixth member of the circuit, each team will play a fifty-game schedule. If only five teams operate, each will play forty-eight games.

CAMPAIGN FOR WORLD PEACE

Church Strongly Behind Movement to Abolish War, Says Moderator

The Presbyterian Church of Canada will stand shoulder to shoulder with other churches in support of a militant campaign for world peace, states Rt. Rev. J. S. Shortt, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, who is visiting this city.

Dr. Shortt addressed a large congregation in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church yesterday morning on "The Impact of the Church on National Life," while yesterday evening he sketched the general aspect of the church's work at Knox Presbyterian.

This afternoon the moderator is speaking before the Women's Missionary Society at St. Andrew's, which will conclude his engagements in Victoria. To-morrow morning Dr. Shortt will leave for Nanaimo to speak there in the evening and will then proceed to Vancouver.

EXAMPLE SET
"The menace to world peace is the narrow nationalism of the eastern European countries," declared Dr. Shortt in an interview.

"We in Canada, and the people of the United States have repeatedly expressed ourselves wholeheartedly as being opposed to war. We have set the example by establishing no fortifications along our boundary line, but ours is a secondary voice in the councils of those of Europe; still we must make that secondary voice heard," he said.

"The fact that throughout the length and breadth of this great Dominion of ours there is not a single fortification rearing its formidable head in threatening grimace, stands as a concrete and glorious example of Canada's attitude toward the war storm brewing in eastern Europe."

"While Canada does not manufacture munitions herself, and hence the matter of state control of the manufacture of munitions and weapons is not a crucial issue with us, it behooves every church in Canada to carry on a militant campaign against this hideous monster of war that periodically swallows up millions of our young manhood. War," Dr. Shortt said, "does not offer a solution to national problems."

HOME INFLUENCE
Making reference to the work of the Christian church in its effort to maintain an influential hold upon the young people, Dr. Shortt said that the immensity of the distractions today were colossal and their variety manifold. The church's greatest problem, he said, was to win the young people back to the fundamental realities of life.

No real headway in this direction would be made, he believes, until the home won itself back to the position it previously held in influencing youth. It was along this front, he remarked, that the church was conducting its greatest drive. The home, he pointed out, must be brought to a realization that the responsibility of molding character, morale, and the instilling of spiritual ideals in the young, belonged to the home.

"If the home influence can be regenerated and brought to bear upon the young people who are distracted by motion pictures, which are not always of the best, theories of evolution, which have got beyond their mental reach; religious theories and reservations, then the church can take up the task of assisting the homes in developing a fundamental realization of Jesus Christ," said Dr. Shortt.

PRIDE FACTOR
Pride was the greatest factor in the decrease in church membership and a general apathy toward church work, the moderator observed in touching upon the depression as it affected the church.

"History has shown us that the pendulum swings, and it is hoped that the church will soon be out of its crisis," said Dr. Shortt. "Certainly there are many who, because they cannot give, because they may not be dressed as they have been accustomed, have drifted away from the church, which wishes to succor them in their time of need." he said.

"This matter of pride can be carried too far. The church, while always in need of funds with which to advance its work, is not mercenary. Every effort is being made to bring these people back to the church, and I must say that we are succeeding very well," the moderator said.

While on his visit to Victoria, Dr. Shortt is staying at the home of his sister, Mrs. A. W. Carter, 330 Denton Drive. He was entertained at dinner Saturday evening at the home of Capt. and Mrs. A. M. Boyd, 1528 Eford Street.

Orillia Team And Heads Criticized

Newly-crowned Canadian Lacrosse Champions and Officials Panned for the Manner in Which Finals Were Staged By Dan McKenzie, President of Canadian Body

New Westminster, Oct. 15.—Criticism of the management of the Orillia Terriers lacrosse team and of the refereeing in the Dominion championship series between Terriers and New Westminster Salmonbellies was voiced to-day by Dan McKenzie, president of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association, on his return here.

"The refereeing was the poorest seen in a Mann Cup series in some years," he said. "The western team spent thirty minutes more on the bench than did Terriers."

McKenzie stated the Orillia team is one of the most powerful squads ever to win the Mann Trophy. He severely criticized the team management, however.

"Their action in traveling westward without permission of the C.A.L.A. was typical of their actions throughout the series," he said. "I understand that Cook, their manager, is under indefinite suspension by his provincial body, yet he appeared in the middle of the floor in the last game. Likewise, we were never certain whether the team would finish the series, and I am told that, in the last game, the players overruled the management and went in and played."

The president declared he would stand firm on the association's edict against the post-season series between Orillia and St. Helen's of Vancouver to be held here and for which the Terriers are en route west.

"The ruling was not mine alone," he said, "but that of one of the most representative meetings the Dominion body has ever had. When we met, we had little or no information from Orillia or Vancouver regarding the Orillia team. Management was asked to submit the proposition in writing and failed to do so."

Charlie Conacher
Star in Grid Win

Montreal, Oct. 15.—With Charlie Conacher leading his offensive, Toronto's professional football team came from behind to defeat the To-nawandee of Buffalo as professional football returned to the Montreal picture yesterday at the stadium.

Trailing by seven points midway through the third quarter, Toronto swung into action before the last change of ends, and twice Charlie Conacher crossed the Buffalo team's line for touchdowns before the end of the game.

The final score was 10 to 7 and the victory was the Toronto squad's fourth of the season without a defeat.

Saskatchewan A.A.U. Will Look Into Status of Traveling Athletes

Regina, Oct. 15.—Amateur status of every athlete in Saskatchewan who changes residence is to be probed by the Amateur Athletic Union.

At their annual convocation over the week-end, the amateur "Old Boys" thoroughly discussed the business of importing and exporting athletes. They decided all was not well.

A special committee will be appointed (the names are not to be announced) to study every athlete who moves in or out of the province will have to satisfy this body as to his amateur standing or be classed as a professional.

The ruling affects hockey players now in the move and will also apply to rugby players.

An invitation has been extended to the Amateur Union of Canada to meet in Regina in 1935. No delegate will be sent to this year's meeting in Toronto.

Meralomas Score
Another Victory

Vancouver, Oct. 15.—Meralomas, last year's British Columbia football champions, continued along their unbeaten path, Saturday, by blanking University of British Columbia 12 to 0 in Varsity's first game of the Big Four schedule. Over in North Vancouver, Vancouver Athletic Club and North Shore played to a 2 to 2 tie.

Vancouver, Oct. 15.—St. Saviours again failed to break into the Inter-City League win column and were beaten by Westminster Royals, 4 to 2, at Con Jones Park Saturday. The Coulter-Purrier combination accounted for most of the Royals' goals, Coulter registering the hat trick.

U.S. FOOTBALL

Leading Teams in West and East Defeated; Washington Wallops Oregon

New York, Oct. 15.—Shocked leaders of the United States football parade suffered a few more heavy casualties Saturday, and left the fans wondering to-day just where it all was going to end.

Georgia, Iowa, Ohio State and Villanova, all favorites in their own sections, hit the dust in another series of exciting battles. Georgia, touted as a leading contender for the south-eastern conference crown, fell before the onslaught of Carl Snaveley North Carolina Tarheels 14 to 0, while Villanova bowed to La Salle, small Philadelphia College array, 13 to 6. Iowa and Ohio State, two of the big ten's best, were beaten out.

Iowa rallied fiercely in the fourth quarter, only to lose a 14 to 13 verdict to Nebraska's corn-huskers. Ohio State likewise saw a smashing fourth quarter spurt go to waste as Illinois snared a one-point decision, also by 14 to 13.

CALIFORNIA BEATEN
Pitt's Panthers avenged two Rose Bowl trouncings with a 20 to 0 decision over Southern California, while Stanford, with "Bones" Hamilton leading the way, whipped Northwestern just about as had been expected, 20 to 0.

One period of the kind of play that used to mark Knute Rockne's eleven, gave Notre Dame a convincing 14 to 7 victory over Purdue, while Clark Shaughnessy's Chicago Maroons piled up a tremendous 37 to 0 score on Michigan's hapless Wolverines, big ten champions a year ago.

Harvard was surprisingly strong in stopping Brown 13 to 0. Princeton romped over Williams 25 to 6, and Yale topped Penn 14 to 6, in a game that was much closer than had been anticipated.

Washington scored its first victory over Oregon in eight years to 6 to 0.

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—The majority of the players from whom Eddie Gerard will shape the St. Louis National Hockey League team reported for two workouts Saturday as the training season of the entry got underway in earnest. Eighteen of the twenty-seven who appeared were professionals and nine amateurs.

Alex "Bud" Cook and the Roche brothers—Earl and Desse—have still to report.

Wins Tourney

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 15.—Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., professional, who started out last spring by winning the Bobby Jones masters' tournament, pocketed the $1,000 prize in the Louisville $5,000 open yesterday.

Smith took the prize by shooting the 72 holes in 286, two under par, and three shots lower than the field. Craig Wood, Deal, N.J., former professional at the tournament course, and pace-setter during the first two rounds, faltered over the final round yesterday. His score of 889 took the 8800 second prize.

Tommy Armour, Chicago, made a staunch stand in the closing 36, with 71-71, to compile a total of 290, which was good for third prize of $600.

En route to the pre-season workouts of the Americans at Oshawa were Ronny Martin, first string wingman; Dave "Sweeney" Schreiner and Fred Hergert, forwards with Syracuse last year, and two Calgary juniors who will proceed to Oshawa where the Americans are training.

HEALTH SELDOM COMES BY CHANCE TO PERSONS OVER THIRTY

Good health cannot be taken for granted any more than a good income can. So for persons over thirty it is just as smart and businesslike to plan to enjoy good health as it is to plan to enjoy a good income. And it's just as much a matter of plain common sense to check up on yourself.

In health, your shortcomings are, at first, likely to be those annoying, not-exactly-well feelings. At such times, if your blood were tested, it would most likely be found "low in count." This means a shortage of red corpuscles and the corpuscles themselves short of haemoglobin. Make up this double shortage, and you'll come up to normal health again. Neglect it and serious results may follow.

Observing, in his practice, the importance of keeping the vitality of the blood up to normal, a Canadian authority originated a blood-building preparation which has been helping run-down people back to health for nearly half a century. This preparation, now known the world over as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, definitely increases the blood "count" in the majority of cases, thereby restoring vitality, steadying nerves, imparting strength and toning up the whole system. So the person over thirty who finds good health slipping, is well advised to take at least a 30-day treatment of this excellent remedy. The element of chance has been practically eliminated in such a treatment, because tests recently made by an authority in a clinic of 40 people, proved conclusively by individual blood "count" that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills certainly improve the health by enriching the blood. LECTURE BY

Robt. G. Jackson, M.D.

In the Shrine Auditorium

Oct 18 and 19, 8 p.m.

Subject:

"Natural Health Through Natural Living Habits."

ALTHOUGH beginning his career as a lecturer after the age of 70, Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., is recognized as the foremost lecturer in North America in the health lecture field.

Dr. Jackson's present itinerary will cover 12,000 miles and require eight months of continuous traveling, with nightly lectures, and often three in one day, a mighty programme for a man one-third his age. Yet Dr. Jackson will never miss an engagement, never have a cold or be sick, and from every platform will defy disease to attack him. This itinerary extends from Quebec to British Columbia in Canada, and from New England to Florida, from Washington to California and points in between in the States—all sorts of climatic conditions, yet never will Dr. Jackson wear an overcoat, vest or underwear—has worn none for twenty years.

At fifty Dr. Jackson was about to die from a long drawn out combination of diseases. By correcting his living habits he came back to be one of the most vital men in North America, no age barred, and still is at almost seventy-seven. His lectures will demonstrate this claim beyond cavil or doubt. Come and see and hear him and be convinced.

Dr. Jackson's lectures are on the general subject of "Natural Health Through Natural Living Habits," leading to a natural immunity from disease. You will be willing to sit for hours under the spell of his convincing argument, delivered in a youthful, vigorous, resonant voice. You will be astonished at his demonstrations of youthful agility and strength. You will be charmed by his perfect diction, intrigued by his agile, erect, athletic, youthful figure and marvel at the snappy brilliance with which he answers questions from the audience at the close of each lecture. But come! Come! And come early or you may fail to get a seat as was the case with hundreds last year in many places. This may be the last opportunity you will have for some time to hear Dr. Jackson as pressure is being brought to bear to have him lecture next season and probably for several seasons in the British Isles. Admission free.

MASONS WERE GUESTS HERE

Large Party of Royal Arch Visitors From Washington Entertained By Lodges

Victoria Masons were hosts to 330 members of the Royal Arch Masons over the week-end, the party arriving Saturday aboard the special steamer Tacoma from Seattle. It was one of the most notable of fraternal gatherings held in the city in recent years.

On the arrival of the Tacoma at the Inner Harbor docks at 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon the visitors were greeted by the reception committee headed by A. M. Manson, K.C., grand first principal of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of British Columbia, and Thomas Hutchinson, Grand Z.

Some 300 were present at the official banquet in the Shrine Temple on View Street, the function being presided over by W. R. Tule of Victoria. The address of welcome was given by Most Excellent Companion A. M. Manson, representing the Grand Chapter. Response to the welcoming address was given by Most Excellent Companion A. Ryan, grand high priest of the Grand Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons of Washington.

"VERY LUFLY" GARBO CRIED

By PAUL HARRISON
New York, Oct. 15.—Gotham's famed Forty-second Street and Broadway probably is no longer the "cross roads of the world."

One would nominate instead a couple of relatively small areas a thousand feet above the streets—the observation terraces of the Empire State building and Rockefeller Centre.

Virtually everybody goes to the Al Smith-John Raskob tower—visiting royalty, merchant princes, movie queens, cosmopolites of every kind, and plenty of John and Jane J. Citizens from Keokuk and Tishomingo.

Greta Garbo went there alone the last time she was in town. Spent half an hour leaning against the parapet and staring in melancholy fashion over the misty city. "Very luffy," she said finally. And went home.

With some misgivings they finally installed a bar atop the Empire State, and it has turned out all right. Mac, the bartender, says nobody gets high enough to want to turn cartwheels on the edge of the parapet.

It is a nice place to spend an evening, what with the restaurant and orchestra and all. From 1,200 to 1,500 visitors go there each day and night, which was about the average for the Woodworth tower before it was dwarfed by newer skyscrapers. Business is so bad at the Woolworth now that its souvenir concession has been closed. The Empire State sells souvenirs, of course, but the most popular gadget is a voice-recording machine which makes records to be mailed to the folks back home. Dorothy Glass tried to make one and got stage fright before she could finish her allotted 125 words.

"UPPER" MANHATTAN
The Rockefeller's have not got around to putting a bar in their astral sphere. There will be one, a three-sided, glassed-in affair with a sort of patio in the middle for dancing. Just now, though, all you can get in the roof lounge is a cup of tea or coffee, served by a pretty girl with the compliments of the house.

There is a guest book, and everyone is supposed to register. Many people write terse little comments—"wonderful," "marvelous" and "stupendous" are overwhelming favorites. A Senator traveling from Buenos Aires was one not especially impressed. He wrote simply: "Bah!" with a great flourish. Eldest Watchorn, a Canadian, penned an enigmatic "Dear God!" A man named Thomas declared: "I liked the hostess." After the names of Robert K. Dunn and Margaret Tracy is the entry: "We washed the dishes." The hostess says yes, they actually did ask to be allowed to wash the dishes. It seemed to be some special secret thing, so she let them wash a few cups and saucers.

One of the longest rubberneck tours in town is taken by bus and costs a dollar—a sum conducted within Rockefeller Centre, and includes everything from the foreign buildings on Fifth Avenue to the two theatres and the RCA building. Guides explain all about the architecture and the murals, the flora in the gardens, the water in the fountains.

From the top of the central skyscraper they will point out, a few blocks north, the red brick home of John D. Rockefeller Sr., and next to it across a concrete lawn, the house of John D. Jr. They will tell you that the latter walks to and from his offices in the building, but they do not show you the offices. These are about the simplest in the place—plain plaster walls, a few pictures (no portraits of the elder Rockefeller), some rugs, John D. Jr.'s own office has some wood paneling. He

Monthly Increase Since Wage Orders Effected Is Put at Half Million; Lumbering Shows Biggest Improvement; More Than 97,000 Persons Now Under Government-regulated Wages

British Columbia industrial payrolls have increased by approximately $500,000 a month as the result of minimum wage orders effected by the Board of Industrial Relations, according to calculations of the Department of Labor, based on information from representative firms.

In the lumber industry alone the extra payroll since the wage orders were passed amounts to approximately $300,000.

The average increase of sawmill payrolls for each employee is $6 a month.

Combined with the higher wages there were an additional 1,500 persons employed in lumber work as between April and August in 322 firms reporting to the department out of 370 who received questionnaires. This, of course, helped to swell the total payroll increase.

The department's figures show that more than 97,000 people in the province are now within the scope of wage orders passed by the industrial relations board.

They are divided as follows: Under female wage act, 17,895. Males in lumbering industry, 40,000.

In mercantile industry, 34,000. In barbering, 1,074. In taxi driving, 500.

In construction, 2,000. The wage order in the lumber industry has been effective longest and gives the best opportunity for comparison.

Last year, for instance, 76.3 per cent of the adult male employees in sawmills were receiving less than thirty-five cents an hour.

The minimum was fixed at thirty-five cents, with provision that twenty-five per cent of the total employees might be paid twenty-five cents an hour.

A survey in August shows only twenty-one per cent were getting less than thirty-five cents an hour.

Monthly payrolls of the 322 lumber firms reporting in August totaled $1,086,928.01. In August, 1933, it was $895,383.23. The number of employees had increased from 12,061 to 12,847.

Under the female wage act recovery of wages by the department has increased remarkably. In the eight months' period, January to August, inclusive, the recoveries were $9,057, as compared with $6,835 in the whole of last year and $9,391 in 1931 and $10,000 in 1932.

In the six months it has operated the industrial relations board has passed sixteen orders under the wage act and seventeen regulations under the Hours of Work Act.

works at a table instead of a desk, and the only relic around the place is an old roll-top, now used by a secretary, but which used to belong to the oil-king himself.

School Migrates After 372 Years

A famous London school, the Merchant Taylors' School, founded over 350 years ago, has migrated from Charterhouse Square to ampler quarters built for it at Sandy Lodge, Hertfordshire. Other London schools which have migrated are Christ's Hospital, of which the boys' section is now at West Herts, and the girls' at Hertford; Charterhouse, which moved to Godalming in 1872; St. Paul's, now at Hammersmith; Brook Green, and King Edward's, now at Witley, Surrey. In addition, University College School has moved from Gower Street to Hampstead, and Mercer's School, after centuries at College Hill, moved to its present quarters in Barnard's Inn, Holborn, in 1894.

The Merchant Taylors' School has a list of distinguished pupils, including Edmund Spenser, author of the "Faerie Queene"; Bishop Andrewes of the "Devotions"; Archbishop Juxon, who ministered to Charles I at the last; James Shirley, the dramatist; Lord Clive, the founder of Britain's Indian empire, and many eminent statesmen, colonial administrators and judges.

This is the second move in the school's long and illustrious history. Founded in 1561 by the Merchant Taylors' Company (which still remains the governing body), the school was housed for more than three centuries in Suffolk Lane, off Upper Thames Street. In 1872 it found that location inadequate and removed to buildings erected in Charterhouse Square, which are now being vacated. The foundation-stone of the second school was laid in the early '70s by the Duke of Edinburgh. It was appropriate, therefore, that two years ago the foundation-stone of the new buildings in Hertfordshire should be laid by his nephew, the Duke of York. To meet growing demands, the new buildings are much more extensive in character and contain accommodation for fifty boarders, as well as 400 day scholars. The site, with its excellent sports grounds, covers 250 acres.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELS

THE ACTOR

I wonder if an actor knows more than most men of joys and woes? And is it true an actor reads the lines of the clear dearest? The surgeon only takes apart raw nerve and fibre of the heart; the actor, though, must probe to find what passions down those red ways wind. He must discern the mood that lies behind youth's faintest smiles or sighs. And what is it that hid hands up? Those past by in turn will show when they are lifted in this wise. He must interpret every look. To make of thought an open book. Those past by in turn will show when they are lifted in this wise. He must interpret every look. To make of thought an open book. "Y" TAG DAY ON SATURDAY

Opportunity For Citizens to Express Appreciation of Great Work

No boy's membership in the Y.M.C.A. pays for itself; to assist in the purpose in the widest field for Boys' Department must of necessity ask a nominal fee. A great part of the expenses of the department come from the general funds of the association.

The people of Victoria will have the opportunity of showing their appreciation of the really great work being carried out among the young people of the city by this branch of the Y.M.C.A. when the annual boys' work tag day is held next Saturday.

The tag day is being organized by H. L. Campbell, under the auspices of the boys' work committee of the Y.M.C.A., of which W. T. Straith is chairman, and whose members include J. V. Johnson, Archie Willis, Sam Clark, H. L. Smith, E. Dickinson and Ted Chapman.

The tag day comes at an appropriate time of the year, when all the many boys' clubs which make up the boys' department of the Y are just getting under way. The clubs cover almost every sphere of physical and educational work possible, and form an outlet for the energies of a host of young people who could never find such profitable occupation outside the Y.M.C.A.

WANT RATES READJUSTED

City Committee to Consider Approaching Railways Minister For Rectification

A suggestion that the City Council approach the Minister of Railways to have him consider taking steps for the removal of the differential in freight rates on goods exported through Victoria, will be considered by the business and trade development committee for recommendation to the council.

A draft resolution has been prepared for the committee's perusal, which draws attention to the fact that higher rates exist for exportation of fruits from the Okanagan through Victoria, than those prevailing for exportation from the same points through Vancouver and New Westminster. The draft points out, is a decided handicap for trade development, and rectification of the situation is sought.

This matter was brought before the council in a letter from the Victoria Cold Storage and Terminal Warehouse Limited. This group pointed out that the railway companies had the differential in effect which seriously affected exportation here. Shipping of apples from Okanagan points was stated as an example. Through Victoria the freight rates on 100 pounds of apples is 38 cents, while the rate on the same apples, shipped through Vancouver and lower mainland centres is only 24 1/2 cents.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the forthcoming performance of Handel's Messiah in Christ Church Cathedral on December 10, have decided to donate any surplus from the sale of programmes after expenses have been met, to the Friendly Help Welfare Association.

"BEST OF PALS"

A couple of close pals with a little acrobatic work thrown in to make an unusual picture.

The "pooch" in the possessive pose is "Miss Dixie," two-year-old blind bull terrier and playmate of eleven-year-old Norma Thivier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. McCallan, 163 Wildwood Avenue.

The change makes possible the consolidation and unification of the two municipal forces, which was not possible under the Municipal Act. Mr. Fisher explained further. This has been brought about by placing the whole district under one provincial sergeant. The members of the local forces will be absorbed into the B.C. organization and will have increased chances of advancement as a result.

Recently the provincial police took over Port Alberni, making three municipalities in one month that have been switched to B.C. control.

FUNERAL TO-MORROW

The funeral of Mrs. Amy McFarlane will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the S. J. Curry and Son Funeral Home, Canon F. A. Chadwick will officiate and interment will be in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

It seems to be generally accepted here that the Liberals will be returned at the next general election, and if that is so we may look for substantial tariff reductions which will benefit the British woolen trade," said P. C. Clery, of Burnside-Heere, manufacturer of high class woollens, of Golden Square off Piccadilly, London, at the Empress Hotel today.

"The high tariff walls built up by the Bennett government have seriously affected the natural development of the woolen trade between Great Britain and Canada."

We look for a change, however, should the Liberal Party be returned to power, and from the observations I have made, there is every indication that it will be," he said.

THIRTY AREAS NOW POLICED

Territory Covered By Provincial Police Grows As N. Vancouver Taken Over

The B.C. police force is now patrolling thirty municipalities in the province, with the addition to-day of the city and district of North Vancouver to the roster of those under its charge.

The change on the North Shore in Vancouver was effected with two objects in view, to increase efficiency, and to economize on the police administration in the two areas, it was explained this morning here by J. V. Fisher, the commissioner.

North Vancouver City will pay $8,500 a year to the government for the service and the district will pay $5,700. This means a saving of $500 immediately on this year's budgets in the municipalities and a larger saving in the future when replacements of equipment will be necessary, he said.

The change makes possible the consolidation and unification of the two municipal forces, which was not possible under the Municipal Act. Mr. Fisher explained further. VANCOUVER. St. Andrew's took a sound trouncing from Victoria United in the Inter-city Football League match at the Athletic Park on Thanksgiving Day, but according to John Murray, one of the officials of the Saints, the Mainland club was robbed of the fixture. In an interview with Al Windsor, soccer scribe for The Vancouver Sun, Murray got the following off his chest:

"St. Andrew's took a jaunt over to Victoria on Monday, but according to John Murray, all they got from the Capital city was a dirty deal from a referee named Swan."

"This guy Swan," says John, "is a first-class homey. If ever there was one, and I'll eat my Sunday straw if he didn't take and hand the game to Victoria on a silver platter. It seems Mr. Swan delayed the start about twenty minutes while Victoria fielded a team, then proceeded to give the home eleven all the breaks, including three of the most offish goals you could possibly imagine."

Of course this is only John Murray's side of the story, but if the performance of Victoria refs are any criterion, St. Andrew's squawk might easily be considered legit.

Soccer followers of Vancouver might fall for this line of Mr. Murray's, but any of the local devotees who witnessed the match will enjoy a mighty hearty laugh from his remarks. It is nothing more than an alibi, and a mighty poor one at that. Any club that cannot take a defeat without squawking should not be engaged in amateur sport. The only remark made by Swan was that the game carried any weight (not that it makes any difference to Victorians) is the one in regard to the match being a "dirty deal."

We agree the Victoria players were plenty tardy in making their appearance and should be jacked up (if they have not already been) about arriving on the field late and fifty minutes after the starting whistle. It was a holiday match, and there was no excuse for three or four of them arriving late.

As for the remainder of Murray's remarks, he concerns himself with nothing more than a lot of so much piffle. The Saints got as square a deal as they could wish for and a much squarer one than many local clubs have received on Vancouver playing fields and courts. The truth of the matter is that the St. Andrew's team showed up late, but they were in comparison to their eleven of former seasons that have played here. If that is the best they have to offer they can be pretty sure they will be beaten every time they play in Victoria. And just to make Mr. Murray feel better we are willing to gamble the local eleven will take his Saints to their next trip over here. And we would suggest that he be allowed to bring a Vancouver referee with him. It would not make any difference to the result of the match, and he would not be able to alibi his way out then.

Sport continues to make rapid strides in Moscow. The Commissioner of Physical Culture has now decreed that special schools of sport should be established in all the cities of the Soviet Union. These will be used exclusively for the training of super-sportsmen, coaches and instructors. To encourage the people, champions are given titles like "Honored Master of Sport," and are entitled to wear medals. Even the poorest sportsman can win a medal of some kind, while the best nearly all the young people in Moscow go about with several dangling from their chests. Formerly the Soviet sports men had to make their name go out in order to make and break records but only to build up the bodies and morale of Soviet youth. To-day this is changed. An order has been issued to beat all world records and set up new ones.

Bullet Myers, a United States wrestler, believes in wrestling with crocodiles in order to keep in condition, when he is in Portuguese Africa training for a bout with the Australian champion, Marty Bucht. He saw several of these creatures and wanted to fight them with his bare hands. He was warned of the danger, but he said he had seen the feat performed by a crocodile, and nothing would satisfy him but to do the same thing himself. With the assistance of some friends Myers rounded up a crocodile and getting it into shallow water tackled the animal. After a great struggle Myers managed to subdue it with a body-scissors and a half nelson.

When Reggie Cooper found himself fourteen pounds over weight, he realized he would have to do some drastic reducing before he could get a job riding horses for owners at the Lincoln Fields track at Chiswick. So began a session of paths, road work and diet, and Reggie pared off twelve of those pounds. He got a mount on Prince Charlie and, after a hard fought stretch battle, managed to nose out Polyphote, the favorite.

Cooper was so fatigued by his reducing practice that he fainted after the finish of the race. Stewards had to haul him back to the judge's stand in a wagon.

Open Defence of City Title With 27 to 0 Victory Over Oak Bay Squad

GARRISON HAND BAYS BLANKING

Victoria's 1934-35 English rugby season got away to a flying start on Saturday afternoon with three senior and two intermediate matches providing good crowds with some first-class exhibitions. Feature of the senior matches was the 27 to 0 whitewash handed the Oak Bay Wanderers at Macdonald Park by the Fifth Brigade, last year's champions. At the Admirals Road grounds a well-balanced Navy fifteen humbled the Canadian Scottish 15 to 0, while at Work Point the Garrison, making their first appearance in senior company, turned back the J.B.A.A. 9 to 0. The Garrison won the senior B championship last season.

The match at Macdonald Park was featured by an opening ceremony, chairman John Macdonald, chairman of the parks board of the City Council, kicking off the ball. He was accompanied into the field by Carey Martin and George Pauline, president and secretary respectively of the Victoria Rugby Union. The field was in perfect condition and the weather conditions play in all matches was fast and interesting.

INTERMEDIATE GAMES

In the two intermediate matches, Victoria College, last year's champions, were held to a 3 to 3 deadlock by the Fifth Brigade at the High School, and on the Work Point grounds the Oak Bay Wanderers, last year's champions, were held to a 3 to 3 deadlock by the Canadian Scottish 22 to 0.

The Fifth had little difficulty in taking the Wanderers into a romp. The first half was a walkover for the Brigade, while in the second canto the Oak Bay team settled down to a smoother work and at times looked as though they might score against the fast-tiring army squad.

The Brigade won the toss and Eastman kicked off. The Fifth line scored. Stipe, Gaunt and Fleming went up on a dribbling rush and Patrick dropped on the ball. McInnes converted to make the count 5 to 0.

After fifteen minutes Fleming took a pass out of the scrum from Stipe to score the second. Again McInnes topped the bar and the score went to 10 to 0.

THREE QUARTER WELL

The Fifth three-quarter line was working well and their forwards took the ball from the scrum regularly. The line went to 15 to 0 when Paul Rowe and Arnie Phillips went through on a double run. Rowe was clear with the ball and passed nearly all the young people in Moscow go about with several dangling from their chests. Formerly the Soviet sports men had to make their name go out in order to make and break records but only to build up the bodies and morale of Soviet youth. To-day this is changed. An order has been issued to beat all world records and set up new ones.

In the second half it was apparent that the Fifth's hard pace in the opening canto was beginning to tell, and nothing would satisfy him but to do the same thing himself. After a great struggle Myers managed to subdue it with a body-scissors and a half nelson.

Bowden-Bastin Are Stars For Arsenal

Jimmy Foxx Not Fully Recovered

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 15.—Jimmy Foxx, star first baseman of Philadelphia Athletics, who was hit on the head by a pitched ball at Winnipeg, may not be able to accompany the American League all stars, en route to the Orient.

Still suffering the effects of the blow, he was ordered to keep off the diamond until Connie Mack joins the group on the Coast, when it will be decided whether Foxx will go to the Orient or to the east for more rest. He was in Winnipeg hospital several days. He said he felt "like sleeping all the time."

Account For Three Goals to Defeat Manchester City and Boost Their Club Into English Football League Leadership; Spence in Brilliant Debut For Chelsea

London, Oct. 15.—The Arsenal is back in its accustomed place at the top of the first division of the English Football League, following the Gunners' 3 to 0 victory, Saturday, over Manchester City.

A record crowd of 70,000 jammed the Highbury grounds to see the meeting between the league champions and the Cup winners. The result boosted the Arsenal to top place on goal averages, although the City is still on even terms in the matter of points.

Sunderland absorbed a two to one defeat from the Spurs at Sunderland, and now finds itself bracketed with Stoke City and Everton for third place. West, after a fourth consecutive win, moved from the second division, Grimsby Town and Preston North End, who four and three respectively on Saturday.

Bolton Wanderers had no difficulty beating Port Vale, 3 to 1, to extend their lead over second place, Reading, by a goal. The result placed the Wanderers at the top of the league, while in the northern division, Huddersfield Town went into a deadlock a point ahead of Darlington, erstwhile leading eleven.

WORST DEFEAT

The result at Highbury was Manchester's heaviest defeat of the season, the first game in which they have not scored. They put up a good fight most of the time, but in the last half hour they were over-run by the tricky Arsenal outfit.

After a period of high-speed football, Bowden headed in the first goal for the Arsenal from Bastin's assist. The second goal was scored by Bowden, who placed free kick in the seventeenth minute for the only goal of the first half. In the second, Bowden scored again, this time from a free kick, made it three for the Arsenal.

Meanwhile the Spurs were doing a good turn for their London rivals by beating Huddersfield in a match for open play. The result placed the Spurs at the top of the league, while in the northern division, Huddersfield Town went into a deadlock a point ahead of Darlington, erstwhile leading eleven.

Half scored for the Spurs within five minutes. Connor equalized, the ball hitting the inside of an upright and cannoning to the outer upright before entering the goal. The deciding goal was scored by the Spurs by Hunt in the second half, in which the London team was much faster.

Grimsby Town pulled a surprise when they beat Derby right on their own grounds, 4 to 1. Batelli and Glover made it 2 to 0 before Derby could score a goal. After that Glover scored twice.

Another surprise was the 2 to 1 defeat administered by Chelsea to the once-mighty Huddersfield. The Blues, who in strong contrast to last season are now scraping along the bottom of the first division table, ROOKIE PLAYERS WELL.

Chelsea's new outside-right from Barnsley, Spence, made a brilliant debut, scoring on a header within a couple of minutes. He played an admirable game, but was out of action before the half, but after that Mills scored the winner in a vigorous but rather disappointing second half.

Despite the defeat Huddersfield showed a better balanced side than previously, giving hope for better times.

Although Mangnall pulled the hat-trick, he was unable to save Birmingham from a 5 to 4 defeat at Liverpool. The Liverpool men were in a strong position, but Mangnall, English and Hodgson, the only reply in the first half being through the hands of the goalkeeper, Hodgson scored again, making it 5 to 1. Then the crowd saw a brilliant Birmingham revival. The team cast aside their defeat and played a brilliant game, and Mangnall, with fine initiative, got three goals, but could not tie the score.

One of the best games of the day was that at Aston Villa, where the Villa and Everton battled to a 2 to 2 draw. Dixie Dean scored for the Villa, and in the second half, Everton, the equalizer coming just before the end. Dean had missed a penalty shot by firing straight at the goal.

Glasgow, Oct. 15.—The championship race in the Scottish Football League was a scramble to-day, following ascension of St. Johnstone to the leading position, at the expense of Glasgow Rangers, who were engaged in the Glasgow Cup final.

While Rangers were forced to leave league affairs alone, incidentally losing their City Cup to Partick by a 1 to 0 count, St. Johnstone had an easy victory over Ayr United to get a one point margin over the champions. The score was 4 to 0, with Dickie, Stewart, Mason and Ferguson doing the sharp-shooting.

Hamilton and Hearts, both going strong just now, won their matches and marched into a tie for third position, only a point back of Rangers. Clyde, suffering its first defeat of the season, was left in fifth place, another point back, but still three points ahead of the luckless Motherwell outfit.

The victory of the Celts came on top of the announcement that Jimmy McMenamy had been appointed coach to the club. The former for the women scorers.

Victoria City Win Hard-fought Match

Hand Saanich Thistles First Defeat of Season in Local Senior Soccer By 2 to 1 Count; Wests Beat Esquimalt 5 to 3 to Take Over League Lead

Saturday's first division matches in the Victoria and District League played at a double-header at the Athletic Park saw the Victoria City youngsters smash their way to a great 2-to-1 victory over the Saanich Thistles and knock them out of first place, as the Victoria Wests humbled Esquimalt 5 to 3 to move into leadership of the circuit. The City boys deserved their win over the Thistles, as they took better advantage of their opportunities and played the better football throughout the ninety minutes. To whip Esquimalt the Wests were forced to come from behind a two-goal deficit in the second half.

The Thistles' defeat was the first suffered by the Saanich club this season and came as a great surprise to their many followers, although the City squad has shown marked improvement every week. The match was featured by two soft goals. The counter secured by the Thistles should have been easily blocked by Alf Hood in the City net, while the winning counter for the City should have given Wally Rowe no trouble to clear. It was a twisting bounding shot, but he had plenty of time to gather in the ball but misjudged its course.

The Wests-Esquimalt encounter saw Ernie Lorandini turn in one of the finest games of his career at right fullback. His sure kicking and deadly tackling saved the guests from time after time, and although some of his body checks were pretty stiff, he showed a willingness to take as much as he gave. He was given great support by Doug Laird, the left back, while Restall in goal was safe. The Thistles opened against the City one man short with Gibbons arriving to bring the team to full strength after five minutes. The Saanich team had a fine opening in the first few minutes when Sage took the rebound from a shot by Haines and, with an open goal in front of him, shot wide. At the other end Barnswell sent in a hard drive from yards out that Rowe tipped by the corner of the post. The City continued to press and Jack Payne rattled the upright and his brother George sent the rebound whizzing over the crossbar.

CITY SCORE
The City went into the lead when Hodgson, outside right, beat Harper and crossed to the goalmouth and George Payne banged the ball between Rowe and the post into the net. It was a beautiful first-time drive. Minutes later the Thistles were back on even terms when Haines fumbled a shot from Holness and Sage rushed in to kick the ball into the net before the goalie could recover. Shortly before half-time the City got the winning counter when Barnswell's bounding shot got by Rowe. With the opening of the second half the Thistles forced matters but were unable to break through the fine defensive play of the City backs, Stoffer and Hallett, while Gibson, left half, was a continual source of worry to the Saanich forwards. This pint-sized half-back turned in a sparkling performance and his breaking-up tactics drew much applause from the fans.

ROWE INJURED
Near the end of the match the City pressed hotly and, during a scrimmage in the Saanich half, Rowe was injured and his breaking-up tactics drew much applause from the fans.

WESTS VICTORY
The Wests and Esquimalt put on a fast exhibition with plenty of scoring being witnessed. After holding the upper hand in the early stages the Wests finally took the lead. "Scotty" Robinson breaking in the clear to beat goalie De Costa with a hard drive.

Esquimalt settled down and it was not long before they tied the score. Mail heading the ball past Restall. Continuing to hold the offensive the Dockers went into the lead when goalie Restall, in attempting to clear a shot from Mail, kicked the ball against a player and it rebounded into the net.

FAST SCORING
Soon after the final got under way John Watt made it 3 to 1 for Esquimalt. Two goals down the Wests turned on the heat and two fine goals by Terry Pears put them back on even terms. The Wests went into the lead for the second time on Gordie Bell's goal from a penalty awarded against Joe Watt.

Esquimalt worked hard for the tying goal. During a melee around the Wests' goal the Dockers appeared for a penalty and, while they argued with the referee, the Wests' forwards broke away and Robinson went in on top of De Costa to score the final goal.

Ralph Alscock refereed.

MOTHERWELL BEATEN.
Hearis kept up the good work with a 2 to 1 victory over Motherwell. They scored first against the Fir Parkers, but MacFayden equalized. Esquimalt was 3 to 0, although Hamilton were not up to their usual form. Harrison, twice, and Wilson did the scoring. Aberdeen had a narrow win over St. Mirren by the only goal scored, a counter from Armstrong. The losers put up unexpectedly stout resistance.

Being spiked twice in a world baseball series is not much fun, as the Detroit Tigers' manager will testify. In fact, he threatened to get rough if it happened again. Here we see Joe Medwick, St. Louis outfielder, being thrown out as he slid into the home plate. Medwick's left leg can be seen striking Cochrane with the spikes going into Mickey's right leg.

Robinson made a perfect kick, and converted the try for the Navy.
The Navy got into the Scottish end of the field almost immediately again, and a strong combined movement by the forwards and three-quarters was only stopped by a fumble within a few feet of the Scots' line.

The two opening movements play settled down to scrum action, with the greater part of the game in Scottish territory. The Scottish defence held the Navy in check, but the three-quarter line was not moving well.

SCORES DROP GOAL
After an uneventful quarter-hour in which close scrum work and long range kicking between the backs had alternated, McDonald, Navy half, placed a beautiful drop between the Scottish posts, kicking with his left foot from the twenty-five yard line, bringing the score to 9 to 0 in the favor of the blues.

The Navy got off to a good start in the second half, with a stunning sun behind the backs soon had the ball well into Scottish territory, where it stayed for the greater part of the rest of the game.

An abundance of penalties in this part of the game prevented any widespread movement by either side. Robinson of the Scottish made an excellent attempt at converting a penalty, granted for feet-up, a fault which was rampant throughout the match, but failed by about ten feet.

Play opened out for a time about ten minutes into the second half, both three-quarter lines getting moving, and one Canadian Scottish and several Navy movements arrived within a few feet of their respective targets.

The ball spent the greater part of the time in the Scots' end of the field, but frequent penalty kicks partly cancelled the Navy's advantage. Candy, Navy three-quarter, was put out of the game with a kick on the knee about half-way through the second period.

About ten minutes before the end of play the Navy three-quarters started a run which turned out to be the outstanding feature of the game. The ball was taken on the half-way line, and traveled up the field and across the line to the right wing, where it came to rest in the hands of Smith, who about ten feet soldiers' defence and scored a perfect try near the posts. The kick failed.

A free kick by the Scottish got the ball away, but it soon returned, and the referee granted a scrum against the Scottish right on the goal-line. The Navy forwards pushed across, and the whole scrum fell on the ball, touching it down. The try was not converted.

The whistle blew almost immediately afterwards with the score standing at 15 to 0 in the favor of the sailors.

The teams follow:
Navy—Robinson, Banfield, Smith, Stagg, Candy, McDonald, Freeman (scrum); Swetnam, Nixon, Conway, Nelson, Sinclair, Corbin, Marcotte and Burrows.

Scottish—Colgate, Hollands, Copeland, Elwood, Alexander, Tie, Billingsley (scrum); Rowland, Knight, Rockingham, McGregor, Gardiner, Ackland, George and Thompson.

Despite this beating, however, the Bays put up a good fight and showed some promise, when it is considered their players were much lighter and several of them were new to senior A company. Many of the old stalwarts were missing from the Bays' crowd.

The Garrison boys, led by Bill Wharton, did most of their damage following scrimmages close to their opponents' line. It was there the Garrison showed its superiority in weight, and literally were able to push everything before them. Four minutes after the start the Garrison opened the scoring when Martin got the ball over after a five-yard scrum. Tesky missed the kick for extra points. Several times the Bays seemed to be on the point of scoring.

About half-way through the first half the Tommies made the score 6 to 0, when Rowton went over after a forward rush. Tesky again tried a kick for extra points, but again was unsuccessful.

Rowton made the final score about fifteen minutes after the second half was under way, when Martin and Stewart, of the Garrison were both off the field. Rowton's try followed a scrimmage inside the Bays' twenty-yard line. Featherstone took the kick, but failed to convert.

The Bays tried harder than ever from then on, but were not quite heavy enough to get across their opponents' line.

Two mishaps marked this game. Martin, smart scrum half of the Garrison, was thrown heavily on the hard ground and had to be carried off early in the second half of the game. Bill Crothall, J.B.A.A. three-

ALL OF US are warned to be thrifty in our youth and lay up something for a rainy day, so that when the storms of age come upon us we may not find ourselves without an umbrella to shelter us. But no one urges us to provide any mental protection for the lean years that are even more surely bound to come to us than is poverty.

Indeed, we may escape poverty altogether. We may never lose our money, but if we live there is no escape from the tragedy of age, which robs us of those we love that scatter our families, that takes from us our friends, that shuts us out from our old avocations and that leaves us lonely and forlorn and miserable unless we have some resources within ourselves which enable us to pass the time agreeably.

Most people never even think of providing any amusements or diversions for their old age. The very men and women who would consider it criminal not to safeguard themselves from poverty are old never make an effort to save themselves from being spiritual paupers in their age, forced to feed on crumbs of interest that drop from the tables of the more fortunate.

All of us know so many rich men and women who are so poor when they are old in everything that makes life worth living. Men who have been so busy making money that they have never taken time to learn how to play; who have never read anything but the stock market and the headlines and the comic strip in the newspapers; who do not like to travel because it breaks up their routine; who are not even amused by the theatres or the cinema, and who, when age or ill health forces them to retire from business, die in a year or two from sheer boredom.

Women who have been so absorbed in their houses or their children that they have lost all touch with the outside world; women who have never belonged to clubs, nor gone into society, nor even thought of anything since the first baby was born but Johnny's teething and Sammy's getting on the football team and Mary's braut, and who, when their children marry, become that pestiferous thing—the parasitic mother-in-law who has to go and live with her children because she has no life of her own.

So just as we should lay up money to support us in the days in which our earning capacity will be gone, we should lay up interests for those days in which we will be too old and feeble to step out and go places and see things. And we have to do this when we are young. We cannot acquire new tastes and habits when we are middle-aged. We cannot become joyous and full of pep and get excited over things that we do because we are conscientiously trying to amuse ourselves. There is no more pathetic spectacle than old people trying to learn how to divert themselves. You could weep over them because one of the things that no ingenuity can manufacture is a synthetic interest in things.

When we are children is not too soon to begin providing for age, and parents who desire to ensure the welfare of their offspring would do better to teach their sons and daughters the love of reading than they would to entail property upon them. For no one can ever be bored who has a passion for reading, because it makes him free of every form of wild adventure and gives him every form of thrill. No one who likes to read can ever be lonely, for he can summon to his side whatever companions he desires; wits for his amusement, philosophers to teach him wisdom, poetry and romance to fill his heart with sentiment. Age is a time of delight to those who like to read. A curse to those who have no fellowship with books. But who have to form the reading habit when they are young. It is a trick that no old dog learns.

Long ago Talleyrand advised every one to learn how to play a good game of whist when he was young so that he might not spend a miserable old age. It is good advice as applied not only to cards, which fill in excitingly what would otherwise be dreary hours for many an old man and woman, but to all games. Golf is the salvation of the retired business man who can walk around the links half of the day and hold post-mortems over his game the other half. So are fishing and hunting and boating and every other sport that gives a man an outside interest. They are just so much capital laid up for the time when he will have to call upon his reserve of resources in order to live at all with any pleasure and comfort.

Best of all the resources that one can make for one's age is friends. Binding people to you with hoops of steel. Keeping close to people by sharing their joys and sorrows. Keeping your heart warm with sympathy and good fellowship and your hand open in generosity and helpfulness, and thereby laying up for age that which will make it beautiful and soft and warm, instead of bleak and cold as it is for the friendless. No complaint of age is more frequent or more bitter than that it is neglected and unloved, that nobody has time to bother with an old man or woman or take an interest in him or her. It is their own fault. They never laid up any friendship for themselves.

If, then, we would be happy when we are old, we must begin by preparing for it in youth, by cultivating friends, by cultivating tastes and interests in as many different directions as possible, and in storing up resources within ourselves that will enable us to enjoy a diversity of subjects and to be good company for ourselves.

Uncle Wiggly's Wild Cherries

One morning when Uncle Wiggly awoke in his hollow among the maples, he heard his wife talking to Baby Buntz, the little orphan rabbit, in Buntz's room. "There, there," said Mr. Longears kindly. "You will soon be all right, Buntz. Uncle Wiggly will take care of you as soon as he is up and dressed. Don't cry."

"My goodness! Buntz must be sick!" said Uncle Wiggly. Quickly he jumped out of bed. Quickly he dressed. Quickly he hopped down the hall to Baby Buntz's room.

"What's the matter?" asked the rabbit gentleman as he saw his wife coming out. "Oh, Buntz has a bad cold and a cough," said the lady rabbit. "I told her you would hop to the woods and get some wild cherries for her. The juice of wild cherries is very good for a cold. So is a tea made from wild cherry bark."

"I'll get some tea away," promised Uncle Wiggly. Quickly eating his breakfast of mukmuk, orange juice and some carrot coffee, Uncle Wiggly hopped over the fields and through the woods until he came to a place where grew some wild cherry trees.

OFF FOR THE CHERRIES

"I hope I may find some cherries on them," thought the rabbit gentleman. "It is rather late for cherries of any kind, though the wild ones stay on the trees longer than the tame ones."

When he reached the grove of trees, Uncle Wiggly was glad to see that there were many of the small round clusters of dark red or purple fruit hanging on stems. "I shall be able to pick plenty of wild cherries for Buntz's cough," said the rabbit gentleman to himself. He had brought with him a little tin pail from his bunghole. He went to the tree and picked a string made from a honey-suckle vine.

"That will leave both my paws free to pick cherries," said Uncle Wiggly, twinkling his pink nose. He did not hold the pail when it hangs about his neck.

He reached up to pick the first cluster of cherries, but he was surprised. It jumped away from him, over his head in the air. "My goodness! The wind is blowing very strong to-day," said the bunny.

He reached for another cluster of cherries. That, also, jumped away from his paws.

"Such a funny wind!" said Uncle Wiggly. He reached for a third time, large bunches of cherries and as they bounced away from him high in the air, all of a sudden Mr. Longears heard some one laughing.

"Some one is playing a trick!" said the rabbit uncle, looking around but he could see no one. "Who is jerking the cherries away from me?" he asked. And the laughing voice said:

"I am!" It was the wild cherry tree whispering. "It's just a joke, Uncle Wiggly. You see I am wild so I have to act wild."

"Oh, Cherry Tree, please don't act so wild! I want cherries for Baby Buntz, who has a bad cold. Please be tame so I can pick you."

"I didn't know Baby Buntz was sick," whispered the tree. "I'll be tame, now." So the branches stopped twisting.

and teasing. Mr. Longears picked his pail full of the same wild cherries and Buntz was soon well again. And you see a puppy dog playing ring around the rose with pussy cat, then I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly and his wife's adventure. (Copyright, 1934, by H. R. Gail)

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1934

Adverse planetary aspects are strong to-day, according to the astrologers. The hours are unfavorable for decisions or plans. Blatant selfishness and self-interest may be the result. Political candidates may be victorious and the masses may be misled. The subject of the day is the political campaign. The subject of the day is the political campaign. The subject of the day is the political campaign.

Persons whose birthdate is 11 have the augury of a year of restlessness and ambition. They should beware of speculation. Children born on this day may be positive in character and difficult to direct. The subjects of this sign of Libra usually are well endowed with intelligence. Eugene O'Neill, dramatist, was born on this day. Others who have imitated it as a birthday include Frederick Huntington Oliver, 1861, and Frank Aycock, college president, 1860.
